FEAR THREE MORE DEATHS IN SHOOTING

Victims of Berserk Principal Who Killed Four Still in Critical Condition.

TRAGEDY STRIKES SCHOOL

Gun-Wielder Angered as Board Declines to Renew His Teaching Contract.

(By Associated Press)

SOUTH PASADENA, Cal.—Death hovered near today for three critically wounded survivors of a deposed school principal's bulletspewing target pistol that cost the lives of four other educators.

Slain were George C. Bush, 62, for 35 years superintendent of schools here and in nearby San Marino; John E. Alman, 50, principal of the South Pasadena-San Marino high school for 25 years; William Speer, 43, business manager of the combined school district, and Victor V. Vanderlip, 45, manual arts and printing instructor at South Pasadena junior high school.

Hospital authorities described as critical the condition of high-strung, erratic Verlin Spencer, 38, who suddenly went berserk after being told his junior high school contract would not be renewed, and mowed down the six school attaches and turned his .22 caliber pistol upon himself.

Little hope also was held for the other survivors of his mad outburst of gunfire, Miss Ruth B. Sturgeon, 45, art instructor at the junior high school, and Miss Dorothea Talbert, 30, secretary to Superintendent Bush.

Police Chief Frank Higgins reported Spencer, an expert marksman, had had numerous recent altercations with school authorities following a nervous breakdown a year ago. He went to the board of education building yesterday, demanding a hearing on a notification his contract would not be renewed.

Higgins said an argument developed and Spencer pulled the target pistol from his pocket and started firing. Bush, Alman and Speer fell dead, each shot once through the heart.

Turning on his heel, Spencer encountered Miss Talbert. The pistol barked twice more and she slumped to the floor, shot through the shoulder.

Waving the gun and shouting "I'll get them all!" Spencer jumped

WANTS FUNDS

Navy Will Ask Authorization to Complete Program.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The navy will ask congress before adjournment for funds to begin construction of all authorized but unbuilt tonnage, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations revealed today.

Stark's disclosure that the navy will seek to begin work immediately on its remaining 299,635 authorized tons was contained in a letter to Sen. Allen J. Ellender (R., La.)

Completion of the authorized program as advocated by Stark, and for which funds must be voted, would add the following to the fleet: 99,500 tons of battleships, 20,400 tons of aircraft carriers, 81,849 tons of cruisers, 75,430 tons of destroyers, and 22,456 tons of submarines.

Completion of Stark's program plus enactment of the pending 11 per cent expansion measure would permit a total addition of 490,360 tons to the navy, raising the total of fighting ships to 1,444,915 tons.

RENEWS PLEA FOR T. B. HOME

Health Commissioner's Report Makes Appeal, Shows Death Rate at 5-Year Low.

With the county's attempt to acquire the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium as a rest home for tuberculosis patients at least temporarily "snagged," Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, today renewed a recommendation to establishment of a convalescent home for T. B. patients in Richland county.

The recommendations were made along with a request for an additional sanitary officer in the annual report of the health department submitted to the Richland county district advisory council at their annual meeting yesterday afternoon.

County commissioners sought to rent the Thomas sanitarium at about $69 per month per patient for a county convalescent home, but T. Amos Jones, owner and operator, declined yesterday to turn it over to the county, asserting that he had "changed his mind" about renting it.

"As yet requiring careful consideration is the problem of providing institutional care for incurable cases and for those who might be returned from the sanitorium to continue forms of treatment at the dispensary," Dr. Rehder said in his report.

He asserted that the establishment of a rest home, properly supervised would affect a savings to the county and be valuable to the tuberculosis control program.

His report showed that a total of 374 individuals were examined at the 15 clinics conducted during the 12-month period. Of this total, 47 were found to have contracted the disease while 51 per cent of that number were in a stage capable of spreading the disease.

The report also showed that the death rate was one of the lowest recorded in the county in the past five years and that the

FUND REACHES $61,465 FOR 10-YEAR HIGH

Workers Cheer as Pledges on Final Day Exceed $57,500 Goal by $3,965.

SECOND 'VICTORY YEAR'

Pledges Greatest Since 1931 When Relief Received Part of Subscriptions.

The Mansfield Community Fund campaign raced past the finish line today to bring home a purse of $61,465 for the city's nine welfare and character-building agencies. The end of the drive today noon found the goal of $57,500 topped by almost $3,965.

This is the largest sum Mansfield has given to its Community Fund since 1931, the last year that relief money was included in the Fund. That year the city raised $64,205 for its agencies and its relief fund.

Cheers rang out today noon when workers turned in their reports at the end of the drive. Majors and workers congratulated Clyde K. Smaltz, general chairman of the campaign, and Smaltz in turn praised the workers for their untiring efforts. Carl H. Henkel, president of the Fund, who was called out of town on business today, was unable to be present.

This was the second successive year that the campaign has reached its goal, and both times was under the leadership of Smaltz. Last year he took over the chairmanship with a goal of $56,750 and raised $58,655.

In 1938 the Fund failed to make its goal by more than $2,000, and in the early 30's the figure dropped to an all time low of $41,213.

Workers today reported in $5,288.77, bringing the total to $61,465. Today's figure was boosted considerably by the clean-up report from Harold W. Arlin, head of the industrial division, who reported an additional $2,401.55, bringing that division up to $38,381. It over-subscribed its budget by about eight per cent.

The food and the construction divisions came closest to making their goals of any of the other groups. James Hoffman, in charge of the food division, turned in $2,715.75 on his quota of $2,800 and said that he would top that figure when scattered cards were received. O. C. McCormick, major of the construc-

WOUND TWO

Irish Republicans Open Fire on Detectives in Dublin.

DUBLIN—(INS)—Two detectives were seriously wounded today in a desperate gun battle in the center of Dublin with suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican army who attempted to steal a load of mail.

The mail was being transported from the Pearse street postoffice to the office of Sir John Maffey, representative of the British government.

Suddenly the IRA men, armed with sub-machineguns and revolvers, appeared and attempted to steal the mail. The detectives opened fire and the IRA men replied.

Bystanders scattered to cover and after a few bursts of shots the IRA raiders fled without the mail, leaving the two wounded officers in the street.

Angered House Raps Chamberlain Defense

Prime Minister Admits Failure Of Norse Move

Opposition Calls for 'Different People' At Helm of Britain as Two-Day Debate Starts; Chamberlain Warns of 'Other Fronts.'

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—An angry opposition cried out in the house of common today for "different people at the helm" after Prime Minister Chamberlain, frankly admitting failure of Britain's central Norwegian military adventure, had defended its start and result with the plea: "I believe it was right."

In the most violent parliamentary debate since the war began, the old prime minister and his war cabinet were branded as "failures" by Clement R. Attlee, the Labor opposition leader.

He said they had been "missing buses since 1931."

Chamberlain, who is expected to keep his grip on the government despite the storm of parliamentary abuse, confessed the Allied troops had to be withdrawn from mid-Norway because they could not get airdromes for fighting planes and because the German reinforcements came up too fast.

He warned again that Britain must be prepared even for attack "in the most violent form" against Britain herself, and he announced the appointment of First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill to supervise military operations from day to day.

Previously Churchill had been head of a committee of defense ministers in the cabinet. Now he will work directly with the chiefs of staffs of army, navy and air force themselves.

After Attlee had exploded his attack, Sir Archibald Sinclair, the Liberal opposition leader, assailed the situation "in which we had to accept defeat in Norway" and attacked the government's "ill-founded boasting."

It was the first day of a two-day debate on the Norwegian reverse.

Chamberlain's speech in general was an anxious appeal for unity both in parliament and among the people, in the face of dangers which, he said, the nation did not yet appreciate.

He said the campaign was not yet finished in Norway, but he warned the country to remember: "There are other fronts

DIES LISTENING TO BALL GAME

Willard Gilkison, Grocer and Member of Pioneer Family, Succumbs at Home.

While listening to the broadcast of the Cleveland-Boston baseball game yesterday afternoon, Willard M. Gilkison, 79, descendant of one of Mansfield's first settlers and himself a ball player in the old city leagues, died of a heart attack just as Cleveland tied the score in the first half of the second inning. He was at his home, 93 East Third street.

Mr. Gilkison, who played baseball here for years and organized a number of teams, was an ardent fan of the sport and seldom missed a broadcast during the season. He had not been well in recent weeks. He was sitting beside the radio yesterday when he was stricken. He died within a few minutes.

Mr. Gilkison was known throughout Mansfield, not only as the proprietor of the Gilkison grocery store on North Mulberry street for more than 35 years, but as the grandson of Mansfield H. Gilkison, first white child born in Mansfield. His grandfather was born on the site now occupied by the Southern hotel. He was one of the first families of settlers to come to this vicinity.

Mr. Gilkison himself was born

Newspaper Asserts Britain to Make Territorial Grant to Bulgaria.

(By United Press)

ROME—Diplomatic circles regarded as authoritative reported today that Great Britain had asked Italy to define its exact position regarding the war and had expressed firm hope that a reply would be made by May 16.

Informants asserted that Sir Noel Charles, British charge d'affaires, had made the request to County Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, May 1, and might have been in connection with the dispatch of Allied naval reinforcements to the Mediterranean.

The newspaper Messaggero quoted in a dispatch from Sofia, as Italy expressed increasing interest in the possibility of extension of the war to southeast Europe, rumors that Great Britain had promised Bulgaria restitution of the Dobrudja area and an outlet to the sea "presumably the Mediterranean" if she abandoned her neutrality in favor of the Allies.

Messagero's dispatch added that it appeared unlikely Bulgaria would alter her attitude "since it would be against her national interest, and British promises were not trusted."

(The background of the report regarding British representations to Italy and the alleged promise to Bulgaria was of the greatest importance.

LONELY HEART

Wellington Farmer Will Return Brideless—It's a Gyp.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Clyde Park, 52, decided today that he would return to his farm near Wellington, O., without a wife.

He said he had spent $150 for a diamond ring, had paid her $473 to settle debts she said she owed and last night gave her $290 to complete payments on an automobile she said she had bought.

Park said she had disappeared at a theater after he gave her the money. Police arrested Mrs. Galub when she returned to her home with another man and Park signed a complaint charging that she had operated a confidence game.

Congressman Calls Washington Vulnerable to Attack.

WASHINGTON — (INS — The capital of the United States is vulnerable to attack in case of war, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R.) N. J. declared in a letter to Secretary of War Woodring today after an inspection of the defenses surrounding Washington.

Thomas, a captain during the first World war, asserted that Langley field, GHQ air force center, and Fort Monroe, both in Virginia, are "pitiful and defenseless" and that the United States is "even less prepared today that it was at the start of the last war."

The congressman said that he made a minute inspection of the two Virginia military establishments to determine first, the adequacy of U. S. army and air corps stations and second, whether Langley and Fort Monroe could defend the capital against an enemy attack.

Legislative Hopper Filled, Council Meets Hour Earlier

With the city's legislative hopper jammed to the brim with an almost unprecedented flood of ordinances, resolutions and petitions, council will be called into session an hour earlier tonight for a caucus session to eliminate lengthy discussion on the floor of the regular meeting.

Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., who said the docket was the heaviest in recent years due to the absence of any special meetings during the past month, instructed council members yesterday to be on hand at 7 p. m. for the caucus.

Beer said he had been instructed to call the councilmen early after a last-minute flood of legislation had been filed with him Saturday.

Among the measures to be passed upon are several ordinances and resolutions dealing with the city's agreement with the state and WPA for the resurfacing of West Fourth street.

Besides a measure releasing the state from any possible damages concerning the project, are bills appropriating $48,000 as the city and property owner's share of the estimated $100,000 job.

Three other measures, also up for approval, call for the issuance of $8,700 in notes to underwrite the grading and graveling of Poplar street, Lind and Barnard avenues, scheduled to be improved this summer.

Appropriation of $7,350 to finance construction of a sanitary sewer on Barnard and Sloane avenues and Coleman road is expected

Swell Out Again, Eh? Well, It's Going to Continue For a Time

Spring has come, tra, la, and if we could remember a poem about spring off-hand, we'd quote it.

Away back on March 20 it was supposed to be spring, according to the calendar, but it was really winter if you go by the weather. But today is the third day of warm, unclouded weather in which you can fairly see the leaves pop open.

And it is to continue, according to the forecast. Oh, there may be scattered showers and it may be clouding now and then, but the weather prophet says "not much change in temperature today and tomorrow."

Men are going out into the woods for mushrooms —and finding them. The woods are carpeted with the first of the spring flowers, which ordinarily are in bloom by mid-April. Valleys along streams in the southeast portion of the county are carpeted with march marigolds and there are spring beauties, wind flowers, blood root and dog-tooth violets.

And if all that doesn't add up to real, bona fide spring, there is further proof in the plans of Mayor W. J. Locke, Mansfield's most ardent fisherman, to "run up" to Ontario for a week-end of spring fishing within the next week or two.

Yesterday thermometers went up to 81, highest this year. And although they dropped to 39 during the night, the average of 60 was still three degrees higher than the average for the past 15 years. A year ago yesterday the temperature was 80 and a year ago today it was 84 as compared to 70 today.

LIE DETECTOR GIVEN THRILL

Secretary's Reaction to Kiss Threat Swings Pointers Nearly Off Board.

INDIANAPOLIS — (INS) — Indianapolis police added a new instrument to their crime detection apparatus today—a "lie detector" so sensitive that it almost broke down under the emotional reaction of a girl who thought she was about to be kissed.

Describing the device to the board of safety, Leonard Keeler, Northwestern university psychologist and inventor of the machine, said he tried it out on his secretary one day.

"Suddenly, I told her I was going to kiss her," the scientist said. "The pointers almost swung off the graph."

Without further ado, the board decided to purchase the apparatus.

Its inventor said the instrument measures skin resistance a more delicate indicator of emotional response, in addition to registering respiration and blood pressure.

For instance, he said, if a person is asked to select one card from a group of ten, and then these cards are shown to him with the comment, "Is this the one you chose?" A peak of tension will be reached when the correct one is shown. This tension, according to Keeler, will be reflected by an increase in skin moisture.

HOSPITAL BILL FINALLY PAID

WATERLOO N. Y.—(UP)—Mrs Alice M. Yaw, Waterloo Memorial Hospital superintendent, exhibits a faded slip of paper and a $2 bill as proof that most hospital patients believe honesty the best policy.

The currency, she said, came from a man who walked into her office and stated he wished to pay an eight-year-old bill. The man was injured on Memorial Day, 1932, at the local race track and after being treated at the hospital, left without settling the small bill.

"I've come a long way to pay this bill," the man said, "but I feel a lot better now."

NEW ANESTHETIC

Simple Way to Put Dental Patients to Sleep.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A new and simple way of putting dental patients to sleep for long and complicated operations without harmful after effects, was described to dentists by Dr. Edward Reiter of Cleveland before the Cleveland Dental society's annual spring clinic.

The new anaesthetic is injected intravenously into the arm and the patient usually yawns and has gone to sleep before the needle is out of his arm, Dr. Reiter said, adding "The patient will sleep from 12 to 20 minutes before awakening. After he wakes there is no shock or nausea."

Its disadvantage, he maintained, is that once the new fluid—known as sodium pentathol—is injected into the arm it cannot be reclaimed from the blood stream. Should something go wrong with the patient, he could be revived by administering oxygen, he stated.

Dr. Reiter believes that the injection will not be practical for general practice however, because a patient who has taken the anaesthetic has to remain in the doctor's office for at least an hour and even then "you cannot let him drive an automobile home," he concluded.

LOOKS AT TRUCK PARKING PUZZLE FROM 2 ANGLES

Committee Studies Viewpoint of Average Driver and Delivery Operator.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a weekly series of articles on the city's traffic problems, written by chairmen of subcommittees of the Citizens Traffic Committee, now seeking a solution of traffic ills. Readers who have suggestions to make concerning any phase of the traffic problem are asked to put them in writing. They may be mailed to the Citizens Traffic committee, care of The News-Journal.

By MILO HIEBER
Chairman, Truck Unloading Committee, Citizens Traffic Committee.

The problem of loading and unloading of trucks is one which is of vital concern to every one who operates a car or truck. The committee on unloading of trucks has been considering ideas and plans for handling the problems which the trucks create as they are related to the general traffic problem.

The committee considered first the convenience of the average motorist, for it is he who is first to condemn the truck owner who may be double-parked, or who may commit any one of a number of acts which interfere with the free flow of traffic.

It should be pointed out, however, that the present city ordinances are not clear as to double parking and may even be interpreted to permit double parking for loading and unloading.

The committee considered secondly the problems of the truck operators and merchants. Unfortunately, from the traffic viewpoint, the city of Mansfield is laid out in such a manner that very little loading and unloading of trucks can be done from alleys. Therefore, it remains to do the bulk of this job from the curb. The committee believes that double parking on the part of all truck operators will be entirely eliminated if reasonable access is given for pulling up to the curb.

A number of suggestions have been considered to accomplish this aim. Naturally, if more space is to be provided for the unloading of trucks at the curb rather than from the middle of the street, there will necessarily need to be restrictions, such as:

1—Loading zones set apart specifically for trucks.

2—Shorter parking time for motorists to increase "turnover."

3—Larger safety zones at intersections of alleys and streets which may be used by trucks for unloading purposes.

In some cities where parking meters are used, the regulations permit the free use of parking space in the parking meter district up to 9:30 or 10 o'clock in the morning for the unloading of trucks. After the above hour the trucks drop their coins in the parking meters the same as anyone else. This plan encourages the trucks to do all the work possible during the morning hours.

These cities have discovered that where parking meters are used, open spaces are generally available for use by trucks for unloading, and double parking is no longer a problem.

The committee has also considered favorably the plan which is in effect at Syracuse, N. Y. The basic idea of the plan is to clear the streets of all parked cars during the morning hours (7:30 to 9:30), and then permit 30-minute parking during the rest of the day up to 6 o'clock. This plan has a number of advantages. Here are several:

It clears the space for unloading of trucks, and encourages early morning deliveries.

It also prevents the half-day or all-day parkers from using the downtown areas, thus making space available for those who would like to park downtown for shorter periods.

It would also discourage those who use the downtown streets for all-night parking in preference to renting a garage.

The public is urged to send their suggestions to the Committee, which welcomes any constructive ideas.

Former Gov. Martin L. Davey

DAVEY vs. BRICKER

A Convincing Parallel

The name Davey is used here for brevity. It is intended to include all the department heads and the legislature.

Davey balanced the state budget every year without new taxes and without any financial juggling.

Bricker balanced his budget by robbing the public school fund of $6,500,000 (which he put in his general revenue fund) and by letting people go hungry.

VETOED APPROPRIATIONS

Davey vetoed over $15,000,000 in unnecessary appropriations, in order to save money for Ohio taxpayers.

Did Bricker veto any appropriations? Not one dollar.

TAX REDUCTION

Davey gave the people of Ohio $72,000,000 tax reductions from 1935 to 1940 inclusive. He repealed the sales tax on food, cut automobile license fees $2,000,000 a year, cut farmers' truck fees $1,000,000 a year, reduced admissions taxes from 10% to 3%, cut intangible taxes from 6% to 5%, etc., etc.

Did Bricker give any tax reductions? Not one dollar.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Davey gave Ohio the great public school foundation law, which reopened the closed schools and saved the school system for this state.

Bricker robbed the public school fund of $6,500,000 in order to make a pretense of doing something for the schools.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Davey increased old age pensions twice by executive order—the first time $10 per month and the second time 10%.

Davey promises to increase old age pensions in accordance with the new federal law, and he promises to return all the property to the old age pensioners which the state has taken from them. Davey makes good his promises.

Bricker broke all his pre-election promises to the old age pensioners, which he made in his campaign letter.

Bricker has the power to call the legislature right now to increase old age pensions and restore the property to the old folks. But will he? Not unless he is scared into it.

LABOR ATTITUDE

Davey has been a friend of labor for many years throughout his long service in Congress and as Governor of Ohio. He produced much favorable legislation that is now on the statute books.

Bricker has slapped labor in the face at every turn of the road. He seems to be anti-labor. His handling of unemployment insurance has shown a desire to chisel the unemployed.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Davey set up the unemployment insurance department in Ohio and organized it on a business basis with one of the lowest overhead costs. He left over $100,000,000 in that fund. Under his management, Ohio was the only state in the Union which was ready to pay unemployment insurance benefits as soon as the law permitted.

Bricker proceeded immediately to make the Bureau of Unemployment Insurance a political football. He discharged many of the most capable employees and stacked it with his own henchmen. And he established an anti-labor policy in the administration of the law.

CARE OF HIGHWAYS

Davey kept the highways of Ohio cleared of snow, and covered the icy places promptly with sand or ashes. He kept the highways of this state in fine travelling condition, better than the surrounding states. The result was a sharp decline in winter accidents. He built more miles of good roads for the same money, and kept the highways repaired.

Bricker's fake economy has neglected the highways, and allowed them to be piled with snow day after day. The icy places have not been protected. The result has been a tremendous increase in winter accidents. He has confined himself largely to the building of the most expensive highways and neglected the maintenance of the others.

CONSERVATION

Davey took Conservation out of politics and made the Conservation Division one of the best in the United States. He did more for Conservation in 4 years than had been done in the previous quarter of a century. He kept Conservation out of politics, and appointed men who knew their jobs. He gave all sportsmen's fees to Conservation, paid back the money previously withheld, secured large Federal sums, and gave Ohio its only great program.

Bricker put the Conservation Division right back in politics. He appointed a Republican politician as Conservation Commissioner. He discharged nearly all the competent, trained professional employees, and put in their places politicians who knew nothing about either the science or philosophy of conservation. Bricker set Conservation back ten years. He broke all his promises to Ohio sportsmen.

DIVISION OF INSURANCE

Davey put a high-class insurance man in charge of the Division of Insurance and kept it free of politics. He raised the standard of that division so that it ranked with the best in this country.

Bricker picked a politician to run the insurance division, and he has been playing politics with it ever since. He discharged many of the competent employees, and put inexperienced politicians in their places.

CLOSED BANKS

Davey inherited closed banks with 500 million dollars of deposits, and closed Building and Loans with over 100 million deposits. He made the best record of any state in the Union, returning 84% to the depositors. The next high state paid only 70%. He finished the work of reorganizing or liquidating all but 18 of 169 closed banks, and finished with a big majority of the closed Building & Loans.

Bricker had very little of the problem left regarding closed banks. But he has been playing politics with them. One of the most conspicuous examples of this is his miserable handling of the Building and Loans in Dayton. While Bricker was Attorney General, he raided the closed banks with exhorbitant lawyer fees that were shocking in their amounts.

CIVIL SERVICE ATTITUDE

Davey respected the Civil Service Laws of Ohio. In only a few cases did he discharge Civil Service employees, and only then when the employees violated the law by pernicious political activity. Davey kept nearly all the experienced personnel of the Ohio government, in order that the departments could function efficiently and economically in the public interest.

Bricker raped the Civil Service in a more audacious manner than any Governor in Ohio's history. His record of contemptuous action against Civil Service employees is worse than all Governors of Ohio combined since the law was passed. He discharged experienced, capable employees by the thousands. The result has been gross inefficiency and waste.

PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION

Davey passed many progressive and constructive laws for the benefit of the masses of the people. His record is the best in 20 years or more.

Bricker's legislation was largely Ripper laws, intended to get political control of all the departments of the government. He has done nothing for the farmers, nothing for labor, and almost nothing for business.

TRUTH IN PUBLIC OFFICE

Davey told the truth to the people when he was Governor. He did not resort to misrepresentation or tricky devices regarding the affairs of the state.

Bricker has been guilty of many falsehoods, especially with reference to the financial affairs of the state. In fact Bricker has been running for President ever since he was elected Governor.

STATE REVENUES

Davey had to get along on greatly reduced state revenues in 1938, because of bad business conditions. And still he balanced the budget without letting anyone go cold and hungry. He met all the state's legal and moral obligations, and left a cash balance in the Treasury for his successor. Davey raised the pay of the poorly paid workers.

Bricker had $30,000,000 more in 1939 than Davey had in 1938. He actually spent $23,000,000 more than Davey did in 1938. In spite of the hypocritical claims, Bricker spent $1,000,000 more for salaries and wages in 1939 than Davey spent in 1938. But still Bricker cut the wages of the poorly paid employees.

TREATMENT OF MINORITIES

Davey gave representation in the Ohio government to all the groups of this state. For the first time in history, he gave important positions to representatives of all the minority groups. He believes that all citizens are entitled to proper representation, so that all may feel "this is my government."

Bricker drove out of the state government all these representatives of the minority groups, and appointed in their places his own little clique. He has shown himself to be narrowly partisan, prejudiced to the point of bigotry, cold-blooded and high-hat.

Beauford Wants Chance to Show What He Can Do

Mansfield Lightweight, Disappointed Over Recent Showing, Claims He'll Make Up for It.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ALL I WANT is another opportunity to show Mansfield fight fans what I can really do."

That was the statement Beauford Glover, leading Mansfield lightweight, made the other day after he signed to meet Frank Franklin, Columbus city champion, in one of the two feature bouts on the Friendly House amateur card at the Armory Thursday, May 16.

This setto will precede a meeting between Joey Maxin, of Cleveland, national amateur champion, and Jake Zacharias, classy Friendly House 160-pounder. It is also over the five-round route.

The complete program was announced today by Russ Gimbel, district A. A. U. commissioner, who is in charge of the show. There will be a semi-final five-rounder, and four three-heat sessions.

Paul Carbetta, Mansfield bantamweight, takes on a rugged rival when he meets Ernie Mossman of Cleveland in the semi-final.

Glover, 1940 Cleveland Golden Gloves open champion who reached the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. tournament at Boston this spring, has been out of the ring a month, but is working daily at the settlement training quarters in preparation for the five-round melee.

In his last fight here in a Friendly House show, Glover decisioned Matt Yannie of Cleveland although a number of spectators who witnessed the tussle thought the Mansfield boy lost.

And now Glover is eager to prove his point. He might do it, but those who saw Franklin in action against Ray Howman, Ashland battler, in a heat in Battery D's "Battle of Champions" show may think differently.

Franklin pounded Howman all over the ring, using a smashing right uppercut with telling results. Howman has fought Glover, but never took such a whipping.

Three other Mansfield youngsters are scheduled to appear in the shorter affairs. Joe Sauer, 147, takes on Jack King of Columbus; Sam Walker, 124, goes against Jackie Harrison, Cleveland, and Eddie Talley, 116, faces Orville Fisher, Cleveland. Howman and Hodge of Marion are in the other three-rounder.

The Maxin-Zacharias fight appears to have all the earmarks of a thriller. Maxin, who has won 40 straight matches, beat Jake in an opening round bout in the Cleveland Golden Gloves classic.

There has always been some doubt as to what might have happened if the affray had gone five rounds for Zacharias was beginning to land hard blows in the third. The margin piled up by Maxin in the first two heats was too much to overcome.

Carbetta and Mossman should stage a nip-and-tuck ringfest. Both were defeated by Buddy Smallwood in the Cleveland tourney. Paul lost out in a semi-final while Mossman dropped a decision in the championship round.

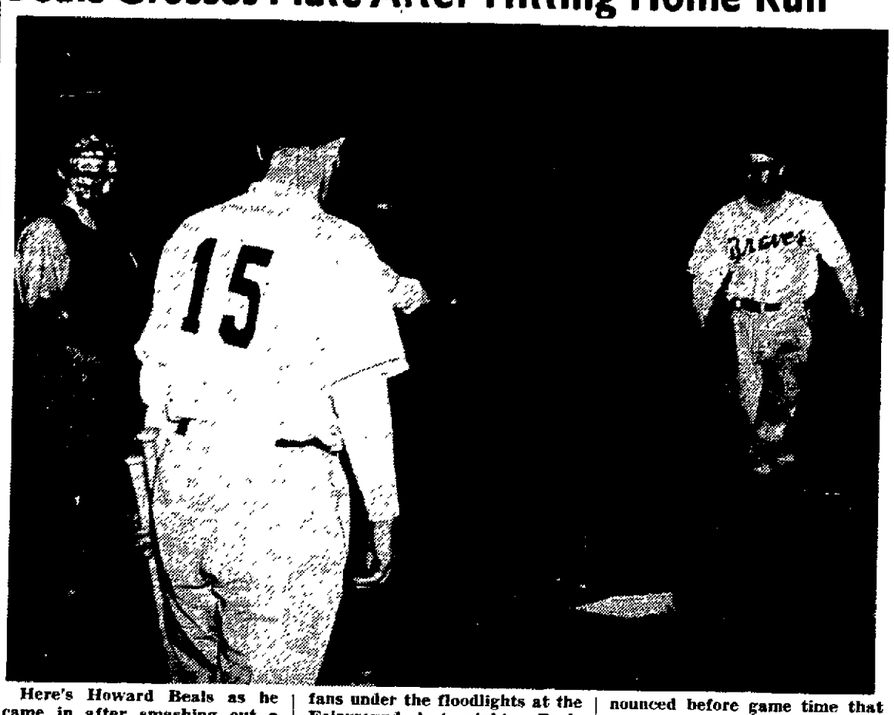
The demand for tickets has been so heavy Gimbel stated that they would go on sale today. The ducats may be purchased at the City News, Corner Lunch, Daley Cafe, Hunt's News Depot, Ritz Night club, Mansfield Athletic Supply, Fritz Miller's night club and the Friendly House. Ringside tickets are one dollar, general admissions (all seats behind the fourth row ringside chairs) are 75 cents, with bleacher seats selling for 40 cents.

Matchmakers for the show, which is being staged to raise money for the Friendly House medical fund, are John Villella and Mike Wentz.

Beals Crosses Plate After Hitting Home Run



Here's Howard Beals as he came in after smashing out a home run—the first of the season—in the fourth inning of the Braves-Mudhen Ohio State league contest staged before 750 fans under the floodlights at the Fairground last night. Beals won a $5 prize offered by P. H. Ober, vice president and general manager of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company. Ober announced before game time that he would award the prize to the first Mansfield player to hit a four-bagger. Tiffin won, 10 to 9. No. 15 is Manager Stover.

Tiffin Scores Victory

Mud Hens Hand Mansfield First Defeat of Season By 10-9 Count.

By CHARLES MARTIN

WITH the sting of their first defeat still smarting, the Mansfield Braves invaded Findlay today to clash with the pace-making Oilers under the floodlights at 8:15 p. m.

Stan Kudelvitz, rookie southpaw, was Manager Dewey Stover's nomination to take the hill as the Braves attempt to regain their winning stride.

The Mansfielders saw their two-game winning streak interrupted under the arcs at the Fairground last night when the Tiffin Mudhens eked out a thrilling 10 to 9 decision before a "Moose night" gathering estimated by officials at 750.

Behind by a 10 to 7 count as they went into the ninth frame, the Braves tried desperately to overtake Tiffin with an uprising that netted two tallies, but the attempt was chocked off when Eldon Dice sent a slow roller to Hughes, Tiffin hurler, and was tagged out at first. The bases were packed.

Mansfield started out all right last night and had piled up what looked like a comfortable lead when Howard Beals hit a home run over the left field fence with a mate on base in the fourth. That gave the Braves a 4-1 advantage.

But Tiffin had other ideas. They got to Rookie Dick Farkas for three markers in the seventh. It still didn't look like the Braves would lose for they punched over a pair of tallies in their half of the frame to take a 7-4 lead.

Sander found Farkas for a homer in the eighth and before George Laurila was rushed to the rescue three more runs crossed the plate as the Mudhens knotted the score. Dick Green replaced Farkas, but was jerked after Tiffin combed him for three hits.

Laurila, a veteran righthander from the 1939 team, didn't fare any better in the ninth and Tiffin put three runs over to cinch the game.

Dick Morse, who paced the Braves at the plate with four out of five, opened the last of the ninth with a single. Carl Foldenauer, pinchhitting for Laurila, walked, and Connie Zerman and Beals contributed singles to account for two runs. Stover walked, but Dice, anxious to get the game-winning single, tapped weakly to the box.

Art Hilborn, past governor and Paul Richie, governor, of the Moose Lodge presented Manager Stover with a pin and horseshoe of flowers at the game time.

It'll be "Ladies'" night when the Mansfield team entertains Lima here Friday night. All women will be admitted for a service charge of 10 cents, club officials stated today.

Frank Ankenbrandt, regular third baseman, who was injured in a practice session before the season opened, was suspended by Stover today. The youth started the season and in his first trip to the plate his nose sarted to bleed and he has been on the sidelines ever since.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

SOMEWHERE BETWEEN LOUISVILLE AND NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Stop me if you've heard this one before, but I think Bimelech is a sure thing.

In the Preakness, I mean, which will be run on Saturday at Al Vanderbilt's lovely old Pimlico track in Baltimore.

I'm not a man to change horses in the middle of a stream of adverse criticism. Let the more fickle-hearted switch to Gallahadion, Dit, Your Chance, Woof Woof and the others, now that Bimelech has been beaten in the Kentucky Derby.

After all there is the chance that Bimelech doesn't like roses, or that he once had a look at Colonel Bradley's check book and realized his owner didn't have any need for $60,000.

The Bradley colt's record is still the best. He went to the wars for more than a year before any horse beat him, and he still has won eight of nine starts. That's a great deal more than you can say for any of the horses who raced him Saturday at Louisville, including Gallahadion, the winner.

As a matter of truth you'd have to look right carefully to find a three-year-old who has been beaten any more consistently than Gallahadion has. He has been beaten more often than your living room rug, and that includes this year's spring housecleaning. And not always by magnificent beasts, either. Some of his trimmings were at the feet, shall we say, of horses unworthy of carrying the Borden company silks.

Bimelech didn't run his true race on Saturday. He couldn't have. If he did how is one going to explain the pre-derby opinion of so many honest-to-goodness horsemen. And by honest-to-goodness horsemen I mean such men as Hirsch Jacobs, Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, Roy Waldron, and most of the other fine trainers in this country.

They all thought Bimelech was a shoo-in, a cinch of the best lead pipe variety. Take Waldron, who saddled the Derby winner. He didn't like Gallahadion's chances. He honestly felt that Bimelech was the best horse in the race and that the rest of the field was going out to take a shot at second money.

Admitting that I have little or no horse sense, I still can't help but feel that Bimelech just had one of those days that occasionally come to man and beast. I couldn't have run a very fast race Derby day. Have you ever been to a Kentucky colonel's dinner the night before the Derby? Maybe Bimelech had been out on a Derby eve party and mixed his grain.

Anyway, we'll see what happens in Baltimore Saturday.

JUNIORS PRACTICE

Dewey Durant, manager of the American Legion Junior ball club, announced today that the team would hold practice sessions at Liberty park at 4 p. m. today and 4 p. m. Thursday. All boys of 17 or under are eligible to try out for the team, Durant said today.

Indians Back in Second Place, But Lead Yanks by Four Games

BOSTON—(AP)—The Indians are in second place today, half a game behind the Red Sox, but the Cleveland players consider themselves leading the American league by four games.

This strange-sounding reasoning is explained by the position of the championship Yankees in the race, the New Yorkers being sixth and four games behind the Redskins. The Indians believe the Yanks the team to beat and thus gauge their progress in relative fashion.

Their respect for Boston increased somewhat yesterday, however, as the hub city lads pounded Willis Hudlin from the mound to win, 8 to 5. The victory put the Sox back in first, evened the series at one apiece and left to 22-year-old Mike Naymick the task of taking the rubber contest today. The six-foot-eight youth's pitching foe was to be 40-year-old Bob Grove.

The Sox pounded Hudlin hard in the fourth and continued to shell Johnny Humphries, closing the inning with six runs.

The Indians drove Emerson Dickman to cover in the sixth, but were snuffed off with two runs because the Sox, unlike Cleveland, had relief pitching.

Boston tallied a run in the first on two hits, but Cleveland evened the score the next inning on Ken Keltner's single and a triple by Rollie Hemsley. The Indians took a short-lived lead in the fourth with two runs on a homer by Ben Chapman and triples by Hal Trosky and Jeff Heath.

Dickman's retirement in the sixth followed singles by Keltner and Heath. Hemsley managed to plane one run off Relief Hurler Jack Wilson and another came in on a passed ball. But the Tribesmen collected only two hits off Wilson the rest of the game.

Ken Jungles and Bill Zuber managed to stop the Boston attack after the barrage against Hudlin and Humphries, but it was too late then.

* * *

The Indians move to New York tomorrow for a two-game series with the Yankees, returning home Friday to face the St. Louis Browns.

Chicago Monarchs Win ABC Tournament Team Crown

DETROIT —(AP)— The Chicago Monarchs, who toppled 3,047 pins on the tournament alleys here April 13, emerged today as team champions of the American Bowling Congress.

Firing in the five-man event came to an end last night with a barrage from the last 70 teams of the original 6,073 entered. None of the teams on the wind-up card threatened the championship performance of the Monarchs.

The thunder of falling pins which has dominated the State Fair coliseum for 62 consecutive days will die away today with the final rolling in the minor events.

Victory for the Monarchs carried with it $1,500 in prize money and individual gold medals studded with diamonds. Other prizes ranging from $1,200 for second place down to $25 will be distributed among 1,034 teams in the order of their final ranking. The lowest score to share in the $67,935 allotted to the team event was 2,638.

The Rosedale club quintet of Kansas City, the only team besides the Monarchs to better the 3,000 mark, took second place on a count of 3,003.

Third place and an award of $1,000 went to Falcaro's Schlitz of New York, who had 2,993. Fourth place, good for $875, was won by the Kling's Beer five of Flint, Mich., who rolled 2,983.

Hank Leiber Nearest Thing to 1-Man Team

By JUDSON BAILEY

IT TAKES more than one man to make a baseball team—a timely explanation considering a total of 207 players were used in yesterday's eight major league games—but Henry E. Leiber of the Chicago Cubs is as near a one-man team as the big show has at the moment.

Today, for instance, Leiber is leading the National league (1) in batting with a .418 mark; (2) in runs; (3) in runs batted in; (4) in hits; and (5) in doubles.

Hank's honors have been won squarely. He has hit safely in the last 12 consecutive games of the Cubs and yesterday he collected a double and two singles to bat in three of his team's runs in a 5-4 eleven-inning victory over the Phillies. The winning run was Billy Herman's homer in the 11th and it offset the efforts of the Phils in batting Dizzy Dean out of the box in the fifth.

"Brother Paul" Dean also was in action yesterday, his 1940 debut coming in a relief stint for the New York Giants against the Cincinnati Reds. He worked two innings and didn't show much in giving up two hits and no runs. The game already had been captured by the National league champions on the five-hit hurling of Gene Thompson, who chalked up his third victory by a 9-1 count.

The Boston Bees plastered the sixth straight defeat on the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10-7 in 12 innings. Manager Frank Frisch made a desperate shakeup in his lineup, but all the Pirates got out of it was a new record for using the most players in a game. Frisch put 24 of his 29 men into the contest and Boston used 16. Eleven pitchers saw service.

Brooklyn needed only 11 men yesterday to whip the Cards 6-2 for their 11th victory in 12 games. Luke Hamlin hurled shutout ball after the first inning. Curt Davis stayed on the hill until the eighth although thumped for 11 blows.

The Boston Red Sox bounced back on top of the American league in their see-saw rivalry with the Cleveland Indians, rallying for six runs in the fourth inning to top the Tribe 8-5.

The world champion Yankees were victims of another lefthander and an outburst of slugging by the Detroit Tigers, 6-4. Riding along on the careful pitching of Red Ruffing, the Yanks were suddenly bombarded for three runs on homers by Hank Greenberg and Pinch-hitter Billy Sullivan in the eighth.

Then in the ninth Greenberg doubled two other runs across. Southpaw Tom Seats received credit for the victory, pitching three scoreless innings.

The Chicago White Sox, still floundering in last place, were edged out 3-2 by the Philadelphia Athletics. The surprising St. Louis Browns gave the Washington Senators their fifth straight setback, 11-9, with a 16 hit offensive.

4 Track Meets On Schedule

With three meets scheduled at Stadium field this week and one in Akron Saturday, Mansfield track fans should get their fill of the sport.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 p. m. the Mansfield Red Streaks will meet their arch foe, the Sandusky Blue Streaks, while this afternoon spectators had a chance to see Coach Harry Mehock's Reserves in action against the Shelby Varsity.

Thursday, the City Grade school meet will be held on the high school cinder paths, and Saturday the Red Streaks journey to Akron to engage Akron Garfield.

Prize Winners Announced

Robert S. Hanes Takes 1st In Contest.

The Mansfield Braves baseball club, in conjunction with The Mansfield News Journal, announced today the results of the baseball contest sponsored by the two organizations during the past two weeks.

First prize of $10 in cash went to Robert S. Hanes, 267 W. Fifth street, and second and third prizes of season tickets to home games were won by Robert Vogel, 79 Wood street, and Mrs. Ray Crawford, 235 W. Sixth street, respectively.

Preakness Candidates Get First Test in Survivor Race

By MASON BRUNSON

BALTIMORE — (AP) — A real Preakness atmosphere settled over old Pimlico today with five candidates for the $50,000-added classic set for a tune-up in the survivor stakes and the Kentucky Derby winner, Gallahadion, due to arrive from Louisville.

Accompanying Gallahadion, the surprising colt from the stable of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, was C. S. Howard's Mioland, fourth in the Derby. Both are considered certain starters in the golden jubilee running of the Preakness Saturday.

The survivor stakes, sixth race on today's program, is Pimlico's traditional pre-Preakness test for three-year-olds.

Oddly, all five of the Preakness candidates entered in the survivor are owned by women. They are Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Merry Knight, Snow Ridge and Asp; Mrs. G. D. Widener's Your Chance and Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri's Sun Pharos.

There may be a glimmer of light here for the hunch players, who will be keenly aware that Gallahadion is also owned by a woman. But only three times in the history of the Preakness have women owners won it.

Three others in addition to the Preakness candidates were entered in the $2,500-added, mile and a sixteenth survivor. They were Hugh Dufford's Cockerel, W. H. Lipscomb's Quatredom and Mac Thorn Farm's Run By.

Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech, nosed out by Gallahadion in the Derby, arrived here yesterday, accompanied by three other Derby dust-eaters—Arnold Hanger's Dit, W. L. Brann's Pictor and Tower stable's Royal Man—all labeled as definite Preakness starters.

Toledo Loses To Blues, 4-3

Mudhen Relief Pitcher Is Charged With Loss.

(By Associated Press)

A hero one day and a bum the next—that's the experience of pitchers Ed Cole and Mickey Haefner in the American association's skin-tight flag race.

Cole baffled Kansas City Sunday in scattering nine hits for a Toledo victory. But he couldn't fool the Blues yesterday in a relief role, being charged with the loss as Kansas City tripped the Mudhens, 4 to 3, in 12 innings.

Haefner's experience was the opposite. The Minneapolis rookie won a Sabbath decision as a relief hurler but was knocked out of the box yesterday as Louisville won, 4 to 3.

St. Paul treated Indianapolis' Bob Logan with no less consideration, knocking the league's leading pitcher off the hill with 13 hits in less than six innings. The Saints cracked out 21 hits off Logan and three successors for a 16 to 4 decision.

Reds Display Batting Power

Tally 7 Runs in Sixth to Turn Back Giants.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Manager Bill Terry hopes his team will not face another blitzkrieg such as the sixth inning drive which gave the Cincinnati Reds seven runs and a 9 to 1 victory over the Giants yesterday.

Taking their second straight from the New Yorkers, the Reds collected a run in the first, another in the third and then apparently decided on a display of their batting might.

Junior Thompson started the movement, with two out, by hitting a single into center field. Another single and two walks from Harry Gumbert loaded the bases and forced a run.

Frank McCormick singled to send two across the plate. Ernie Lombardi clouted a double against the leftfield wall to bring in another and then Harry Craft followed with a homer to score three more runs.

Paul Dean, the other half of the Dean team, took over for Gumbert and held the Reds scoreless in the last two frames.

Junior Thompson allowed the New Yorkers but four hits while the Reds got 14 safeties, five in the decisive sixth.

The game kept the Reds one and one-half games behind the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers who won over St. Louis.

Manager Bill McKechnie said he might take the blanket off Johnny Vander Meer, the "Golden Boy of 1938" who suffered setbacks last year, in the final encounter with the Giants today. He will be opposed by Bill Lohrman for the Giants.

OTTERBEIN WINS

WESTERVILLE — (INS)—Paced by Dick Rule, sophomore sprinter from Lexington who scored 16 points, the Otterbein track team today recorded an 83-to-84 win over the Ohio Northern speedsters. Ohio Northern got away to an early lead but failed to hold it.

MARKET HOLDS ITS COMPOSURE AGAIN TODAY

Chrysler, Westinghouse in List Receiving Support; Domestic Business News Hopeful.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market maintained its composure today despite a little further bearishness ascribed mainly to the war picture.

Most traders, seemingly unable to find any real market clues in rapidly shifting developments abroad, preferred to keep commitments light, brokers said. Domestic business news, on the whole, was helpful.

Another sharp crack in British empire dollar bonds was a bit depressing, as was additional weakness of the pound sterling and French franc in terms of American currency. Commodities were uneven, along with foreign markets.

Stocks receiving support included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Lacking stamina were Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Air Reduction, DuPont, Western Union, Woolworth and U. S. Rubber preferred.

Those trailing with the motor shares found some encouragement in summaries indicating April sales of new cars in the domestic market amounted to about 400,000 units, or roughly 30 per cent above a year ago.

Department of commerce figures disclosed that United States exports to 20 Latin-American countries during the first six months following the outbreak of the European war exceeded the same 1938-39 months by 54 per cent.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Uncertainty over European war developments continued to dominate the wheat pit early today as prices declined slightly in slow trade.

Opening unchanged to ⅜ lower May $1.05⅝, July $1.04⅜-11.04⅛; wheat futures later held near this range. Corn started ¼c lower to ¼c higher, May 64¾-64⅞c, July 65⅜c.

Trucker Uncovers $60,000 In Bank Loot Near Bucyrus

BONDS HIDDEN 6 YEARS FOUND IN FARM FIELD

Relatives of War Veteran Claim Valuables Stolen at Mechanicsburg.

BUCYRUS—A $60,000 treasure cache uncovered in a field one mile north of Bucyrus by a Fremont truck driver was found today to be a part of the loot obtained in a bank robbery at Mechanicsburg, Champaign county, six years ago.

The "treasure," hidden in a tin box which was dug up by Robert Rimelspach, 25, after his truck ran over it, included negotiable bonds and securities, a $10,000 life insurance policy, and the deed to a property.

Mrs. Charles F. Neer and her son, Charles Neer, jr., widow and son of the owner of the valuables, were expected to go to Fremont today to claim the "treasure." Neer, a World war veteran, is dead.

Ownership of the contents of the box was traced by Fremont police through the name on the insurance policy and the property deed.

Police Chief H. R. Schneider of Fremont said the valuable papers were in the hands of Atty. Harry Rimelspach of Fremont, an uncle of the youth who found them.

Digs Up Box.

Young Rimelspach told Fremont police he discovered the box when the wheel of his truck ran over it in a field where he had gone for a load of fence posts. Hearing the tin box collapse under the wheel, he investigated and dug the partially-buried box out of the ground. He took it to Fremont and turned it over to his uncle and then notified police.

Chief Schneider said the papers were snatched from Neer who was in the Mechanicsburg bank when it was robbed. He had taken the papers from a safety deposit box and was unable to hide them before the robbers grabbed them and escaped, the officers said.

Authorities said the robbers apparently had thrown the box into the field along route 19 near Bucyrus after finding that there was no cash in it.

March From Jobs In Westinghouse Pittsburgh Plant

Approximately 2,500 employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company plant in East Pittsburgh left their jobs yesterday afternoon to attend a mass meeting discussion of contract negotiations, Associated Press dispatches from Pittsburgh said today.

The men are members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, a CIO affiliate.

Dispatches said the men paraded to a stadium, wearing placards which demanded higher wages. The union is said to be seeking a compromise on the company's offer of increases of one to four cents an hour for 7,000 employes, but without provision for 2,396 semi-skilled workers and about 300 laborers.

The union charged, dispatches said, that the company broke off negotiations last Friday "without explanation."

tion division, lacked only $100 of making his goal of $2,100.

Other division majors turned in the following totals in the drive: John G. Routzon, autos, $1,157.85; Bart Haley, clothing, $2,301.90; Mrs. Tom Ford, organizations, $3,692.50; public utilities, Robert Remy, $2,707.15; Harold Burns, officials, $1,136.75; C. N. Shultz, professional, $2,778.85; George H. Smith, financial, $3,130, and W. L. Miller, schools, $1,472.

President Henkel issued a statement today for the entire Community Fund organization in which he said that all workers had a feeling of appreciation and gratitude for what had been accomplished.

"The result of the 1940 Community Fund campaign is most gratifying," he said. "It is reassuring and gives evidence of a reawakened and continued interest in the community and the welfare of its citizens. This is so essential for the proper future growth and development of our community. To the workers in industry must be given much of the credit for the successful campaign. Their response was wonderfully generous and showed their fine citizenship and a real interest in the welfare of their community.

"To all the workers, Mr. Smaltz, the general chairman, and the majors, captains and all of the workers, goes a feeling of real appreciation and gratitude for what they accomplished. There is much thanks to everybody for the interest shown and the response made."

DAVEY, BURTON END CAMPAIGN LULL IN COUNTY

Ex-Governor to Address Rally at Simpson; Cleveland Mayor Speaks Thursday.

A last-minute stimulant will be injected into the serene primary campaign in Richland county Thursday and Friday with former Governor Martin L. Davey, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, and Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland Republican candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination, scheduled for talks at rallies in Mansfield.

Mayor Burton will speak Thursday night at Republican headquarters and Davey will address an eight-county rally at 8 p. m. Friday in the John Simpson Junior high school auditorium.

Mayor Burton will come here on the invitation of the county Republican executive committee, while Davey's meeting will be sponsored by Davey backers in the county. Chairman of the meeting will be R. N. Landfair, East Mansfield, state liquor inspector in the Davey administration.

County candidates will be introduced at the meetings.

Davey's talk here will be one of 16 he will make throughout the state before the primary next Tuesday as he tries for a comeback. He continued his attack on the Bricker administration last night at Columbus and predicted that he (Davey) will receive half of the votes cast in the Democratic primary.

Virtually repeating the speech he gave during the recent congressional election in the 17th district, Davey called Gov. Bricker a "sanctimonious hypocrite" who has been "cruel to people on relief and the old age pensioners."

Atty. John C. O'Donnell, Richland county Democratic executive chairman, said party leaders were taking no part in the Davey rally here, adding that "we are making no endorsements and planning no meetings so we will be free to back the primary winner in the fall election."

Davey was to have appeared at a colored Democratic rally here last Wednesday night, but he spoke in Zanesville that night and did not get to Mansfield.

W. A. Julian, United States treasurer, today endorsed George White of Marietta for the Democratic nomination for governor in letters to state and county party leaders.

"An Ohio Democrat vitally interested in the welfare of the party," Julian said former Governor White "can meet the present Republican governor on the latter's own platform of economy."

Julian said "Martin Davey, on the basis of performance, cannot meet Mr. Bricker in that issue."

SHELBY—Street Commissioner Guy McClane today had set the annual spring clean-up days in Shelby for May 14-15. City trucks will collect the rubbish.

CITES HEALTH FACTOR IN CITY CLEAN-UP DRIVE

Commissioner Urges Citizens to Co-operate; Clubs, Schools Hear Fire Prevention Talk.

In the midst of the city's annual clean-up and fire prevention week, Mansfielders today were urged to join in the drive for the protection of their health and their homes.

"A clean city promotes the health, welfare and comfort of its inhabitants, but its accomplishment is brought about only through the efforts and co-operation of every citizen," Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said.

He urged city residents to take advantage of the service offered by the city which is sending four trucks into the various wards this week to collect rubbish and garbage.

In its rounds of the city, the clean-up crew will go into the Third ward Wednesday to collect rubbish placed in containers where it can be seen from the street. The crew is in the Second ward today.

Safety measures were outlined to pupils in the Bowman, John Simpson, and Senior high schools today by J. Burr Taylor, representative of the fire prevention department of the Western Actuarial bureau at Chicago. Taylor is in the city this week to talk at school assemblies in behalf of the fire prevention campaign. He spoke yesterday at the Johnny Appleseed and Newman schools.

At a joint meeting of Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, held today noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Taylor told of the effectiveness of fire prevention work in reducing fire losses in recent years and pointed to the need for more modern fire-fighting equipment in Mansfield. He especially stressed the importance of greater care in removing the common causes of home fires, which continue to take a high toll in lives.

Fire Chief Charles Seeburger and members of the Mansfield fire department were guests at the meeting, which was in charge of Herbert R. Slough, chairman of the fire prevention committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

REPORT BRITAIN DEMANDS ITALY DEFINE POSITION

Diplomatic Quarters Spread Rumor; Germans Say Zero Hour Set.

Mediterranean to the longer, costlier South African route.

(On May 1, when the British charge d'affairs was known to have seen Count Ciano, American Ambassador William Phillips saw Premier Benito Mussolini. It was reported that Phillips had said that if Italy were involved in war, American shipping would be withheld from the Mediterranean, and that Mussolini assured him that Italy was not considering entering the war at the moment. Later the same day Phillips talked to Sir Noel Charles.

(About this time powerful Allied naval reinforcements began steaming to the Mediterranean.

Germans Report Zero Hour Set for May 20.

BERLIN —(INS)— A purported 15-minute telephone conversation between British Prime Ministetr Neville Chamberlain and French Premier Paul Reynaud, in which "the zero hour for the allied attack in the Mediterranean" was set for May 20th was reported today throughout the German press.

Apparently based upon reports of German secret service agents, the Nazi newspaper stories said the conversation took place April 20th between 10.10 and 10:25 p. m.

(Authoritative British quarters in London branded as "fantastic" the purported phone talk. Paris likewise officially branded the German stories untrue.)

Reynaud assertedly began the conversation, after a few formal phrases, by asserting that General Maxime Weygand, commander of the Allied forces in the Near East, had promised him "to be finally ready for the 'ordered action' by May 15th." He cautioned, however, that Chamberlain should not take this date too literally as "it might be a little later."

Chamberlain, "obviously angered," said it was his impression that "they are taking more time than is necessary down there."

British, Nazis Wage Trade War In Balkans.

BUDAPEST —(INS)— A mighty economic duel between England and Germany for control of Balkan trade was waged today as the small Balkan powers sought feverishly to preserve their threatened neutrality, by force of arms if necessary.

The German efforts to gain an upper hand in the strategic Balkans were not confined to mere diplomatic negotiations, but included a propaganda campaign —a "war of nerves" as well.

German diplomatic circles in Belgrade expresssed the fear that Britain plans occupation of Crete while General Maxime Weygand, allied commander of the Near East army, marches through Greece and Bulgaria to occupy the Danube Delta and the Black sea ports.

Nazi diplomatic quarters in Sofia said England has requested the right to move troops through Bulgaria in event of spreading of the war.

According to the Turkish press, Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to Ankara, offered Bulgaria territorial concessions in Dobruja in exchange for the right of troop passage.

Dobruja is that region of southeast Rumania bounded by the Danube, the Black sea and Bulgaria and its principal strategic factor is the harbor of Constanta, Rumania's principal export seaport and in winter, when the Danube is ice-locked, Rumania's only link with the Black sea. A pipe line runs from Constanta to the main Rumanian oil fields. In 1918, under the treaty of Bucharest, the southern half of Dobruja was ceded to Bulgaria, but the treaty of Neuilly in 1919, restored the entire province to Rumania.

to be approved. This project is scheduled to be done this summer.

To meet the cost of repairs made in the water distribution system due to breaks because of the severe winter, council will be asked to approve an appropriation of $6,000 in that department. It is to be taken from the waterworks surplus.

Another $1,200 will be sought for the purchase of a new address plate making machine for the waterworks office, made necessary because of the change in the city's house numbering which is being done under council's supervision.

Up for a second reading will be a bicycle licensing proposal. Scheduled to come before council at the June 4 meeting for a vote it is expected that there will be little or no comment on the legislation.

There is also legislation prepared calling for the creation of the position of stenographer-clerk in municipal court

At the request of the firemen's pension board council will also be asked to approve the transfer of an $8,000 balance to the board and pass over control of all pension funds to them.

Another measure dealing with city streets will be an ordinance authorizing the street department to proceed with the annual spring oiling of approximately 25 miles of unpaved streets and alleys, a job done annually to ally the summer dust.

Council will also be asked to approve a piece of "mystery" legislation designed to put teeth into the city's building ordinance.

The measure, which no one seems to know how it originated, provides a fine up to $50 for the failure of builders and contractors to obtain a building permit for starting the construction of any building into his automobile and drove back to his own school.

Heretofore there had been no penalty provided in the city code.

There he found Miss Sturgeon and Vanderlip, with whom Higgins said Spencer had had recent difficulties. The art teacher's screams were silenced by three quickly fired bullets into her breast.

Vanderlip was next. The principal found him outside on the campus, forced him into the basement and, after a terrific struggle, left the instructor crumpled dead on the floor with three bullets in his body.

Walking across the campus, Spencer encountered a squad of police, armed with shotguns and revolvers. He ducked into the school cafeteria as they moved to open fire. A bullet from his own gun entered his right side and lodged near the heart.

ANGERED HOUSE HEARS DEFENSE OF CHAMBERLAIN

Prime Minister Says It Was Right to Leave Norway, Warns Commons.

which may at any moment blaze into a conflagration."

Attlee accused both Chamberlain and Churchill of "complacent" and "over-optimistic" statements and voiced his dissatisfaction with the present war cabinet and opposed Churchill's new appointment as "against all good rules."

The people, Attlee declared, were not satisfied that the war was being waged "with sufficient energy, industry or results," and the men of leadership "showed everywhere they were too late."

"The prime minister talked about missing buses," shouted the labor leader, "the country missed all the peace buses and caught the war bus."

Sir Archibald said there is something that suggests "that more foresight and energy and stronger and more ruthless will to victory is required" of the government.

While an angry opposition shouted "You missed the bus," Chamberlain declared he tried to steer "a middle course," looking ahead to the possibility of attack by vast and well equipped German armies "at a number of different points."

He said "we shall give all the help to Norway we can," despite the Allied troop withdrawals from all but the far nothern part of the country, but he said he thought "it was right" to retreat from the Trondheim front when it became apparent that the plan to seize that city "would not succeed."

"We want to be ready to meet the attack wherever it may come," he said.

Speaking of the whole war picture ahead, Chamberlain declared:

"I do not think the people of this country yet realize the extent or imminence of the threat which is impending against us."

Movement of an Allied battle fleet to Alexandria, he said, had "quieted" the situation in the Mediterranean and Near East.

Chamberlain insisted the government had been united in the recent events.

Again and again he warned of the danger of "being tempted into such dispersal of our forces as might suit the purpose of the enemy."

Chamberlain sought to dismiss attacks on his remark of April 9 that "Hitler missed the bus" by saying he made it before the Norwegian invasion. But one opposition heckler shouted, "If Hitler missed the bus, you missed the boat."

"Beware," he cried, "of jitterings and divisions among ourselves. "Presently we may be faced in the most violent form with attacks directed against this country."

Chamberlain told the house: "I believe it was right to make the first attempt and equally right to withdraw the troops when it was clear that the plan would not succeed."

Forced once to take his seat by angry opposition shouts, the prime minister put the blame for the failure of the Trondheim offensive in south and central Norway on two things:

1. "Our inability to secure the airdromes from which we could operate fighters."

2. "The rapid arrival of German reinforcements."

He confessed "we were helpless to prevent the German stroke" because Norway would not let British troops come in in advance of the German invasion.

However, he declared the Norwegian withdrawal was "not comparable with Gallipoli" of the "World war and asserted no more than a single division of troops was involved.

He said also that British losses were "not really great in number" and declared no considerable amount of stores was left behind.

Meanwhile heavy losses by Germany's merchant marine in the Norwegian campaign were reported today by the British admiralty while naval sources indicated the British navy had driven all German warships from the waters around the beseiged Norwegian part of Narvik.

The admiralty declared that the Nazi merchant shipping had lost 300,000 tons since April 1, most of it in the operations around Norway. Another source estimated Germany has lost over 600,000 gross tons of merchant shipping since the war's start.

While there was no authoritative announcement on naval operations around Narvik, one British source said there were no German warships remaining in Narvik fjord or in the waters to the north.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 Germans are reported beseiged by Allied troops at the Norwegian ore port. With the Germans rushing help overland and concentrating their air operations in that area, a battle for possession of the Norwegian outlet for Swedish iron ore is rapidly taking shape.

The failure of one British plane to return from a reconnaissance flight over the North sea was reported by the air ministry.

On the diplomatic front, sources close to the foreign office said Sir Percy Loraine, British ambassador to Italy, probably would see the Italian foreign minister in Rome within the next 48 hours.

Sir Percy's return last night to his post after a visit in England coincided with revived British-Italian tension, with Britain watching closely for any indication of Mussolini's intentions with regard to Italian participation in the war.

Further evidence of the might of Germany's air force came late yesterday with the disclosure that three Allied destroyers had been sunk by Nazi bombers while covering the withdrawal of British and French troops from Norway.

British sources said, however, that the Germans had suffered heavy losses in airplanes during the Norwegian campaign.

From official bulletins and other sources they estimated that the Nazis had lost 300 planes, largely through the work of the British air force. British losses were described as not more than 37 machines.

infant mortality dropped to a record low. The birth rate of 7.9 per 1,000 population was the lowest in the past five years.

The death rate which Dr. Rehder said was below the national average was 8.0 per 1,000 population as compared with 7.2 per 1,000 last year and a five-year high of 11.0 per 1,000 in 1936. The infant mortality rate slid from 32.3 in 1938 to 33.1 in 1939.

Dr. Rehder said the number of communicable diseases listed in the county last year were only one-third as prevalent as in 1938.

His report showed a total of 181 cases of contagion reported during 1939 as compared with 976 in 1937.

The commissioner reported that a total of 3,576 visits were made to the venereal clinics conducted by the department last year for diagnosis and treatment, an increase of 41 over the previous 12-month period.

At the meeting of the district advisory council yesterday, Lewis Rhinehart, R. D. 1, Galion, was re-elected to a five year term on the Richland county board of health.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 7, 1940.

If dandelions were difficult to raise many people would consider them beautiful.

It will also require super-incomes to have super-cars running over super-highways at super-speed.

After looking around, Robert Quillen pauses to remark: "Our guess is that politicians would find the relief problem much simpler if people on relief couldn't vote."

Tracking Down an Arsonist

WHILE the crime of arson is frequently suspected in certain kinds of fires which involve considerable payments of insurance, it is an offense that is rather difficult to prove by evidence acceptable in court.

It is gratifying, therefore, that a series of rural fires which extended through eleven years has been cleared up by the arrest and confession of a Monroe township farmer who has now been sentenced to the penitentiary on a plea of guilty to the charge of setting fire to a barn on his farm last January and collecting insurance on the loss.

This case brings to public notice a department of state government to which little thought is ordinarily given—the state fire marshal's office, which operates through deputies assigned to various districts who make investigation of fires in connection with which there are suspicious circumstances.

This applies, of course, to only a small percentage of fires and investigation by the state fire marshal's office is confined to cases brought to its attention by local authorities or other interested parties.

As related by Gayle Owens, of Marion, deputy state fire marshal who brought the Monroe township farmer to book, it was the linking together of a chain of circumstances associated with this and previous fires from which the same man profited, that finally pinned the crimes on the suspect and resulted in admission of guilt.

When the dangers involved in arson are considered, as well as the insurance expenditures that must be met by other policy-holders because of such fraudulent collections, it is interesting to learn that capable investigators are constantly within call in connection with fires of mysterious origin.

Fred Chamberlain Liked Mansfield

WHEN Fred Chamberlain came to Mansfield twenty-one years ago as general manager of this division of what is now the Ohio Public Service company, there was no doubt about his "liking" Mansfield and no question about Mansfield people liking him.

In church association, fraternal affiliation and civic activities he fitted immediately into his new surroundings and quickly became a natural part of this community.

Capable and earnest in performance of the duties of his responsible position, he seemed always to find time for those tasks of community service which are so essential to civic well being and advancement.

Quiet, unassuming, but with a tremendous capacity for clear thinking and good judgment, Mr. Chamberlain was a constant inspiration to those associated with him in business and to the many friends and acquaintances privileged to know and to appreciate his fine qualities.

A lover of outdoor life, and of the beauties of Nature, it is quite understandable that Mr. Chamberlain should choose an attractive rural spot as his summer home, and that he should devote as much as possible of his leisure time to surroundings which "give to every time and season some beauties of its own."

An estimate of the impression Mr. Chamberlain made on others is found in the tribute of a close associate: "Kindliness was an outstanding quality in his character"—and when kindliness influences thoughts and actions, manhood is seen at its nearest approach to the ideals to which humanity aspires.

Adjustment to the absence of Fred from the various meetings, associations and activities of which he had been so regularly a part during the past two decades, will not be easy. He will be long remembered by all who knew him.

Favor Freedom to Criticize

MISSOURIANS have been greatly stirred by the sentence imposed on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for contempt of court in criticizing a judge. A Gallup poll indicates that more than seven in every ten persons in the state believe that newspapers should be free to criticize judges' decisions. A further poll shows other parts of the country agreeing with Missouri in the same ratio.

This may seem a little surprising in view of the American people's deep respect for the judicial system and the widespread opposition to any basic change in the structure of the courts. But the two attitudes are not inconsistent and are really in line with American principles.

These principles include respect for authority and obedience to it as long as it is properly exercised, but sharp criticism when it is abused.

It is essential to the functioning of democracy that there be free criticism of public institutions, whether administrative, legislative or judicial.

Children's Pains Need Attention

THERE'S no such thing as "growing pains," says an authority on bone tumors. Therefore when a child complains of discomforts which formerly would have been dismissed as "growing pains" he should be examined at once. It may be something quite serious which, if caught in time, can be cured, but if neglected may cause invalidism or death.

When parents and doctors knew less about these matters, children were allowed to die of unknown diseases, or to suffer needless handicaps in the battle of life. Today medical science doesn't know how to cure everything, by any means, but it knows how to recognize symptoms formerly overlooked and how to prevent the serious consequences of many diseases that were formerly neglected.

Placing the War Blame

POPE PIUS XII blames the disastrous European war on "excessive human covetousness and thirst for power." Sane people everywhere can agree with this reasoning.

It is not necessary to attribute the war to impersonal causes or inevitable conflicts. No matter how the warmakers may explain their procedure, whether as patriotism, wisdom, justice, foresight or what not, it remains the cruel work of ruthless and ambitious men.

They have their days of power, and then the people for whose benefit they profess to be doing all this bloody work will have long years of poverty and grief.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Buddy DeSylva and Irving Berlin, two showmen of a kind, were cornered in the pit of the old empty French Casino. The idea was to learn why Victor Moore, Bill Gaxton, Zorina, Irene Bordoni and a host of boys and girls were running around on the empty stage and trudging upstairs to the mezz, where somebody was lazily pounding a piano.

"A new show," said DeSylva. "A musical comedy," said Berlin. "A sort of political satire on Louisiana," added DeSylva. "We call it," said Berlin, "'Louisiana Purchase.'"

So that was it. Louisiana Purchase. And Vic Moore was a Senator from New England who went south to investigate alleged scandals down there.

"Please understand," said Berlin, "this is all in fun. Just innocent fun. Remember 'Of Thee I Sing?' That was a satire on the White House, on the incoming and the out-going presidents. That was eight years ago. This is a satire on a state. But it's comedy. Musical comedy. Nobody points a moral. Nobody wants to reform anybody. We just turn the crank, and hop on, and let 'er go."

YOUR correspondent inquired whether these gentlemen thought anyone would take offense to anything in the show.

"Well," said DeSylva, "our first scene is a lawyer's office. The lawyer dictates a letter to Irving and me. He tells us we can't put the show on. He says we'll risk being sued. Then he tells us there's a way out. He says we mustn't name a real state, or a real city, or real people, but that we must write about a fictional state."

"That's right," broke in Irving Berlin, "so we built our first musical number around this idea, and we call it our "Explanation to the Audience." We carefully point out, in song, that:

"'The politicians we've investigated.
Could come from Maine, or Kansas or Montana;
So we've laid our story in a mystical state.
A mythical state we call Louisiana.'"

"Because," Berlin went on, "there isn't really a state named Louisiana. Not really. It's one of those fictional Balkan Kingdom ideas. And then we had to make up a name for a city, too, and we incorporated it in the song like this:

"'We laid our scenes
In New Or-leans.
A city we've invented so that there would be no fuss.
If there is such a place, it's certainly news to us.'"

"Which," broke in Mr. DeSylva, "certainly explains the case. It's just like a foreword in a novel, saying any similarity between the characters in the book and in real life is purely coincidental and a big surprise to us. We coined the words 'Louisiana' and 'New Orleans', and I think we are going to have a lot of fun."

So there it is. "Louisiana Purchase," a new musical comedy, is a fictional story laid in the mythical city of New Orleans in the entirely fictional state of Louisiana. Irene Bordoni takes the role of the owner of a famous restaurant. Zorina will play a bankrupt countess who just has to get hold of $500. Vic Moore is the non-drinking, non-smoking, non-hand-holding senator who investigates conditions. Suddenly a guy named Westbrook Pegler shows up. He is fictional too. What happens from there on is the secret of the Messrs. Berlin and DeSylva, and will be until opening night, which will be sometime this month.

Spring Variety of 'Hay Fever.'

—By DR. CLENDENING

THERE are three hay fever seasons: The early spring one is due to the blooming of the trees; the late spring and early summer one is due to the grasses, and the late summer and early fall, the most severe of all, is due to the ragweeds and cockleburs, and related plants.

It took people a long time to find out the connection between these "spring colds" and "autumnal catarrhs" and the blossoming of the plants. It took them an even longer time to find out just which plants were responsible.

Most people who have "hay fever" or "rose fever" have it during only one season. Very few people are subject to attacks at all three seasons.

Mildest Type.

The mildest of all is the early spring type. This is due to the blooming or pollination of the trees. The succession is as follows:

April 1—box elder. April and May—birch: April 4—ash; April 6—cottonwood; April 25—sycamore; May 1—oak; May 10—alder; May 15—hickory; May 17—walnut; mid April to early June—pecan.

Elm blossoms as early as February in Virginia; farther north in March and April.

The hackberry pollinates in April and May and the mulberry around June.

Geographically, the pecan is found in the Gulf states, eastern Oklahoma, Arkansas, southern Missouri and southern Illinois. The birches are in northeastern United States and eastern Canada, going down the Alleghenies as far as Georgia and westward across the Great Lakes region to Minnesota and the edge of Manitoba.

Other Distributions.

The beeches are solidly distributed over the Eastern Seaboard, almost to the Rockies. The same distribution applies to the oaks. The elms are very widely distributed. The hackberry has a spotty distribution from Florida, seldom getting higher than the lower edge of Pennsylvania on the Atlantic Seaboard, but going into southern Michigan and up the Missouri River Valley. The mulberries can be found from New York to the Gulf States, Missouri and Oklahoma. It is an important hay fever tree in Washington, Williamburg, Petersburg and south to Charleston.

The western cottonwood is a most important cause of hay fever in the Rocky Mountain section, from Utah and the Dakotas to New Mexico and Arizona.

This type of hay fever causes slight rhinitis and coryza, and usually lasts no more than a week. It yields to very simple local treatment with certain drugs in the nose.

Those who are subject to early summer hay fever, coming on in late May and early in June, should consult their physicians about the possibility of vaccine therapy right now. This is the time to take advice about the possibility of prevention of the type of hay fever caused by the grasses.

Defend Your Americanism!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I KNOW a man who spent seven months in one of Mr. Hitler's concentration camps. He was an important man in Germany—a gentle soul who loved music and art and the kindly ways of life. He had an old-fashioned home filled with loveliness and peace. One rare old painting by Van Dyke. A few good rugs. A fragile wife and little daughter whom he adored.

But he had committed one great and unforgivable crime, this man. He had been born a Jew. True, his so-called Jewish fathers had been Germans for generations. They had given their intelligence and industry, year after year, to the land they loved. They were in spirit infinitely more German than the Austrian neurotic and his gang of hoodlums who came to persecute them. Yet, genealogically they were Hebrews.

So one night as this gentle man sat with his family in peace and happiness, Hitler's soldiers came. With their knives they slashed the rare old rugs. With one hammer stroke they wrecked the Van Dyke masterpiece. With their foulness they left a taint on sensitive souls which life can never erase.

So my friend, the Jew, went to a concentration camp and lived for seven months in incredible horror. Today he is in America. He escaped with what was left of his life, his family—and two dollars. For the crime of being a Jew, Hitler seized his home, confiscated his automobile, his business and his fortune.

I say he escaped. But my friend has not escaped that concentration camp. He will be in it always. The mark of its lash is on his slender body, which trembles at any unexpected sound. The brand of its cruelty is on the haunted eyes which stare ahead as only a shackled prisoner must stare ahead, looking neither to right nor to left. And the ghastly stigmata of its sadism is plain in his awful alertness, in his shaking hands, in the withered pallor of his malnourished flesh.

As long as he lives this man will be the victim of a system of government which exists to crush and terrify the beaten souls who cringe beneath its regime.

Why is America?
That is why.
Why should you be proud of your Americanism? Why should you be grateful for it? That is why.

AND WHY SHOULD YOU BEGIN RIGHT NOW TO FIGHT FOR THAT AMERICANISM?

THAT IS WHY.

For it is no longer enough to be proud of Americanism or grateful for it. If you are to enjoy it, you must start to defend it today with every thought and word and deed. For the vision which founded America is in terrible peril at present. Things have happened abroad which endanger all civilization, which menace every decent and humane ideal. The jungle has broken loose! The beasts are out!

KING KONG HAS CAPTURED EUROPE!

ONLY A THIN LINE STANDS TODAY BETWEEN THE PRINCIPLES OF DECENCY AND THE POWERS OF DARKNESS.

If we wish to save our freedom . . . if we wish to save our self-respect . . . if we wish to save the peace and happiness of our homes and the prosperity of our businesses . . . we too must take our stand. We can no longer take our heritage indifferently or nonchalantly. We must become aware of the priceless privilege which is ours. We must become alert to the shadow which threatens and nears.

WE MUST FIGHT ONCE MORE TO KEEP IN OUR HEARTS THE PRINCIPLES THAT ARE SYNONYMOUS WITH OUR FREEDOM!

Grass Fire

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN LATE afternoon a farmer fired a field of weeds and grass. The wind was briskly from the west. The slope toward the east was pasture, while beyond stood thickly wooded timber. Heavy vapory smoke rose from the kindling pile of long dried grass, the man had ignited. A flame played several inches above the heated growth and I heard the crackle of the gaining fire. The farmer had his five-tined fork that he uses for cleaning stables. With it he lifted a heap of the burning stuff and rapidly scattered small brands along the length of the whole strip. Then he stood leaning on his fork and watched the progress of the fire with satisfaction.

Along an uneven front of 60 rods it leaped up and down like something living that snapped and hissed continuously. The stubble was badly charred, but here and there from little hollows small bits of eddying smoke curled in the direction of the wind. A meagre strip separated the singing fire from the pasture. The pasture slope was green and I believed, as the farmer did, that here the flames would stop. We figured wrong. The fire kept moving up the slope, sending up a soft gray smoke screen that blotted out the woods.

The farmer was no longer leaning complacently on his fork. He disappeared into the smoke and then I saw two neighbors and a boy of 12 or so appear from a field nearby, with shovels in their hands. The flat side of the shovels beat upon the burning grass or clanged against an occasional boulder. The figures of the men loomed dimly in the smoke.

It seemed a winning battle at first, but the men tired and smouldering sparks were caught by the wind and fanned into jubilant flames again. Behind the fighters, the fire crept stealthily into the border of the woods.

That night, all night, far off against the hill, the timber burned. Tall snags made flaming torches as they fell and for several days the odor of burning wood and grass was in evidence, while a bluish smoky pall hung across the bosom of the valley.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — When Ambassador Phillips called upon Mussolini last week it was the first time in a year and a half (with one exception) that a U. S. envoy had seen the real dictator of Italy.

The one exception was when Sumner Welles visited Rome and insisted that Ambassador Phillips sit in on his talk with Mussolini. For eighteen months prior to that, Il Duce had not seen one foreign diplomat except the German.

The latest conference between Phillips and Mussolini came about only because the president of the United States personally requested it. In fact, he virtually demanded that his ambassador be received by Mussolini himself and not by an underling.

This request was granted, but in the course of the interview the Italian dictator told Phillips that he did not have time to discuss the entire situation, and asked the envoy to see his son-in-law, Count Ciano, the next day.

Not generally known but extremely significant was the fact that the British had asked the U. S. to see what could be done to ascertain Mussolini's war aims. No British or French envoy has been able to see him.

When Ambassador Phillips finally got in to the inner sanctum, he did not approach the war question directly. Naturally no ambassador can ask the ruler of any country whether he intends to make war. So instead, Phillips raised the question of American shipping in the Mediterranean, and remarked that it would have to be withdrawn if the situation became more tense.

He particularly emphasized the hope that nothing would interfere with the traditional friendly relations between the U. S. and Italy. He expressed deep concern regarding the growing tension in the Mediterranean and warned that in view of this tension the U. S. might have to cut off all its supplies to Italy.

This, of course, would be a serious blow to Mussolini, especially in its effect upon vital gasoline shipments.

It was at this point that Mussolini replied reassuringly, and indicated that American shipping did not have to worry. But there was nothing very definite or categoric in what he said. He did not specifically promise that there would be no war.

Italian-U. S. Trade.

HOWEVER, Ambassador Phillips discusssed another matter which also required an optimistic atmosphere, a trade treaty between the United States and Italy.

This had been proposed about three years ago, but was dropped because the Italians demanded too much. Particularly they demanded that the treaty be signed by the "King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia"—which would recognize Italy's conquest of that country.

Non-recognition of territory obtained by force is one of the rock-ribbed foreign policies of the United States, particularly in Manchuria. It was outlined first by William Jennings Bryan, reaffirmed by Henry L. Stimson, and continued by Roosevelt. So the trade treaty with Italy, then proposed, went up the flue.

Now, however, new negotiations are in the works, and it looks as if this time the United States would not object to letting King Victor Emmanuel sign his John Henry on the treaty as "Emperor of Ethiopia." The state department now inclines toward the view that this would not weaken our non-recognition policy.

Conquers With Ink.

BEHIND all this is the policy which the Washington diplomatic corps calls "Buttering Up Benito." Another name for it of course, is "Benito's Blackmail."

In other words, Mussolini knows he is now the "swing man" of Europe, can gouge almost anything he wants out of his neighbors, and is very busy doing it. Every belligerent editorial published by the Fascist press, every radio war warning issued by Grandi, adds to the jitters of the Allies and sends Mussolini's blackmail price higher.

Some diplomats figure that he has won more through the inexpensive medium of printer's ink than any man in history. For Mussolini is playing both sides against the middle. From Hitler he has already won the promise of a free hand in the Balkans. From the French he has won a recent invitation to discuss the problem of North Africa. And from the United States he may win a trade treaty and left-handed recognition of Ethiopia.

How far the trade treaty discussions with Italy will go remains to be seen. There is no question that the president regards Mussolini as the key for European peace or for tipping the scales for violent war. So he wants to butter him up.

Senator Nye on Benito.

QUOTE of the week comes from Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota: "Mussolini is like Southern Republican delegates—easy to buy but hard to keep bought."

British Get Tougher.

MEANWHILE important intelligence cables report that the British and French military group believe that the time has come to take the war initiative, instead of waiting on the sidelines for Hitler to knock down neutral after neutral. These more vigorous elements inside the Allied war councils are tired of bowing to "Benito's Blackmail" and now urge a blitzkrieg naval war against the Italian fleet.

It was either to prepare for this or else to do-to-Mussolini-what-Hitler-has-done-to-the-Allies (scare him to death) that the Allied fleet suddenly was concentrated off Egypt.

The Allied military argument is that they sadly needed to repair their shattered political prestige as the result of the withdrawal from Norway, and that if some quick action is not taken to box Mussolini's ears, all of the Balkans will go over to him.

On the other hand, there is the more cautious Chamberlain group which argues that the Allies never must put themselves in the position of being the aggressors, must always wait for the dictators to act first. That is the tug of war over strategy now going on in London and Paris.

Iceland and U. S.

THERE is a lot more behind the rushing of American consuls to Greenland and Iceland than appears on the surface.

Boiled down to cold facts, the Roosevelt administration is afraid of a Nazi air base only 1500 miles from Maine. Bombing planes already have been developed which can fly this far — loaded.

Therefore many more preparations are going on than the state department is announcing, all in order to keep these Danish islands in the North Atlantic from being taken over by Hitler.

One such move is the probable sending of U. S. army planes to Iceland in the not too distant future to carry mail. Probably they will be army bombers—without the bombs.

Red Cross stations also will be established. And most significant of all, one of the men being sent by the state department to Iceland is a West Point graduate.

Meanwhile the prime minister of Iceland has been in direct cable communication with the state department, and reports the Icelanders eager for close co-operation, if not the actual protection of the United States.

OF HEAVEN'S BENEDICTION++

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Carter, her mother dead, her father remarried, quits as secretary to a Chatham, N. H., physician and goes to New York to act as secretary-companion to wealthy Mrs. Kingsbury whom she had met while the old lady was boarding with Rod Westover's mother Grace in the New Hampshire town. Really Brooke has come to New York to be near Rod, to whom she has been engaged for four years and who has been very successful in his work for Barney Glass since he finished college three years ago.

CHAPTER II.

It's been three months since I've seen him, she thought, and I'm as excited as if he were a new lover I was trying to impress. Odd, having known him so long, she could still feel confused, wordless, her emotions shaking her, his touch shutting out everything except the sensation of his touch.

The elevator stopped abruptly and she stepped off, noting instantly that Rod's dark clothes were new. He looked tired but he was smiling, his dark eyes taking in all of her as he removed a brown hat from his black hair. Always he must look at her like this And always the sight of him must stir her and take away her breath a little and cause her face to burn.

"Darling," Rod said and gave her a brief embrace and a light kiss. "This is a surprise!"

"I've others Surprises, I mean," and laughed lightly, feeling a tide of great happiness sweep over her."

"Any particular place you want to have dinner?' Rod asked

"It doesn't matter. You always take me to a different place."

"I want to know what all this mystery is about and why you're in New York on Thursday."

He looked perplexed, curious. She laughed happily.

They got a taxi and sat close, their hands joined. He looked at her again, his eyes searching hers soberly before he kissed her again.

"I've missed you, Rod . . ."

"I've missed you. And writing letters . . ."

She did not want an apology. "Sometimes there isn't anything to say."

"I've been so busy at the office all day and sometimes half the night . . ."

"You take it so seriously, darling."

His smile was a little bitter. "Yes, don't I? How is mother?"

"Fine now. She sent her love and wants you to come home."

He frowned at that. "She just doesn't understand that I can't get away."

"Was your western trip successful?"

"Yes, quite."

"I'm afraid nothing is ever quite so perfect as you want it, Rod."

"Except you."

Their eyes met again, then their lips. Her hands pressed against his shoulders. He looked so tired. Business took so much out of him. Breathlessly against his face, she said "I love you."

"And I love you, Brooke. You're so beautiful—and so dear."

"You write 'I love you' but it never means as much as when you say it—close to me."

He smiled. "That's a crazy hat you're wearing."

"All hats are crazy."

"I like it. It's becoming."

"Thank you. How is Jim?"

"Oh, that's something I have to tell you. I've moved."

He took her to a place where a famous orchestra played mellow music. An expensive place, she thought. The best for her! She was too happy to analyze the gesture in any other way.

He ordered cocktails and lighted a cigaret. "Well? What is this all about?"

She leaned forward. "I've come to stay—at least for several months. It was the summer you stayed at school to do extra work that Mrs. Kingsbury came to your mother's. You must remember our talking about her."

"The rich old lady?"

"Yes! She was born and raised just outside Chatham and married a wealthy man and has spent nearly all her life traveling. That summer she came back to Chatham was her first visit in 45 years. She knew our grandparents. I saw a good bit of her that summer when she asked me to write some letters and read to her Her eyesight is very poor. Well, last week she stopped in Chatham again with your mother and sent for me. She plans to live in New York for the rest of the winter and asked me to live with her as a sort of secretary-companion until she goes to California in June. . . ."

"You won't go with her?"

"No. Not that far away From you?" She has a niece in California whom she visits every year. Rod. I took it because I could be near you. . . ."

It's wonderful but—but isn't she just a cranky old lady who'll be difficult?"

"I wouldn't exactly call her a sweet old lady but she's quiet, at least, and . . ."

Rod laughed "It's fantastic but it's—it's great, of course! She might die and leave you all her money."

"That isn't likely. Her niece in California has children."

"Too bad. Where are you going to live here?"

"She's taken an apartment which is being made ready for us now. She has a maid, Ellen, and a chauffeur, Francis. I'm to write letters, go shopping with her and to pictures, and read to her and make things in general easier for her. For which I'm to be paid a hundred dollars a month." And thought, when a chic young woman passed, that she would buy clothes with the first check. "She's visiting in Boston now and she'll arrive her on Monday. I came down a few days before—to see you. And another thing," she added brightly, "all my nights will be free after 9. Mrs. Kingsbury has to go to bed early."

He nodded, not smiling, his eyes absent. "What did your father think of this, Brooke?"

"He thought I was foolish and impulsive to give up a permanent position to accept a temporary one. But this offer was a passport to you."

The tips of his fingers touched hers. "It's swell. We'll do a lot . . ."

When their cocktails came, she said, "You said you'd moved, Rod. . . ."

He nodded, lighting a cigarette. "Yes. To a larger apartment, alone. I'll take you there later. I hated the additional expense but—but appearances are important and I had to have a place where I could have people in. The other place was pretty awful, and Jim had a habit of bringing the oddest people at all hours. He didn't like it, my moving."

Looking at her, he said gently, "You understand, don't you, that if I'm to get anywhere certain things are expected of me. And where you live and the people you know are important. I had a substantial salary increase after the western trip and I've got to put all of it into better living, better clothes."

She told herself that she must understand, that she must not say she would be satisfied with very little if they would marry quite soon and that Grace, overworked, deserved rest and leisure. Rod clear-headed, trained, efficient, was undoubtedly right. If they waited a little longer. . .

"Of course you must."

With relief he said, "I knew you'd understand. Jim didn't."

"You and Jim didn't . . ."

"Yes we had a row. He couldn't see my point of view at all. I couldn't see his."

"Perhaps I can make him see yours." They had been such good friends for so long.

"Perhaps you can. He's crazy about you." Then, "That music is too good to waste."

FIRE

PREVENTION WEEK
May 5th To 12th

In Connection With Clean-Up Week Sponsored By The Junior Association of Commerce

"Do's and Don'ts" In Fire Prevention
From
Fire Chief Chas. J. Seeburger

DO

look for the approval label of Underwriter's Laboratories on electrical appliances and cords before buying them.

DO

employ an expert electrician for all repairs or extensions to wiring.

DO

keep your attic and cellar clear of papers and rubbish, Place a screen in front of the fireplace.

DO

make sure that all gas connections are rigid and tight (avoid rubber or flexible tubing.) Keep matches in metal containers and out of the reach of children.

DO

install a ceiling of cement or gypsum plaster on metal lath in the cellar (at least in the furnace room.) Change the door leading out of the cellar to one of heavy construction that closes tightly.

DO

place fire stops of incombustible material between the studs in walls at all floor levels. Keep roofs in good condition as hot sparks or fire brands cause fire if they are blown into cracks or on loose materials.

DON'T

force heating plants in cold weather. Call in a heating expert to locate the trouble if you can't keep warm.

DON'T

bridge a blown fuse with a coin or wire. Always disconnect heat-producing electrical appliances when you are finished with them.

DON'T forget to clean chimneys, furnaces and stoves.

DON'T

forget to repair or replace all worn, broken or rusted parts or pipes. Protect any material charred by radiated heat.

DON'T forget to keep all paint-stained or oil-soaked rags or mops in covered metal can unless they can be washed and hung out to dry.

DON'T

forget to use only correct size electric fuses.

Because disaster has never knocked at your door, is no sign or reason that it never will. BE PREPARED FOR THESE EMERGENCIES . . . Your property need not be a total loss, if your insurance is adequate. Think of the fact that there is a fire in thousands of homes daily . . . that it's always the result of an "accidental" cleaning fluid explosion, curtain catching fire from the stove, or cigarette. Remember that you owe it to yourself and others to be adequately insured and also remember that "IT CAN HAPPEN HERE."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 7, 1940.

If dandelions were difficult to raise many people would consider them beautiful.

It will also require super-incomes to have super-cars running over super-highways at super-speed.

After looking around, Robert Quillen pauses to remark: "Our guess is that politicians would find the relief problem much simpler if people on relief couldn't vote."

Tracking Down an Arsonist

WHILE the crime of arson is frequently suspected in certain kinds of fires which involve considerable payments of insurance, it is an offense that is rather difficult to prove by evidence acceptable in court.

It is gratifying, therefore, that a series of rural fires which extended through eleven years has been cleared up by the arrest and confession of a Monroe township farmer who has now been sentenced to the penitentiary on a plea of guilty to the charge of setting fire to a barn on his farm last January and collecting insurance on the loss.

This case brings to public notice a department of state government to which little thought is ordinarily given—the state fire marshal's office, which operates through deputies assigned to various districts who make investigation of fires in connection with which there are suspicious circumstances.

This applies, of course, to only a small percentage of fires and investigation by the state fire marshal's office is confined to cases brought to its attention by local authorities or other interested parties.

As related by Gayle Owens, of Marion, deputy state fire marshal who brought the Monroe township farmer to book, it was the linking together of a chain of circumstances associated with this and previous fires from which the same man profited, that finally pinned the crimes on the suspect and resulted in admission of guilt.

When the dangers involved in arson are considered, as well as the insurance expenditures that must be met by other policy-holders because of such fraudulent collections, it is interesting to learn that capable investigators are constantly within call in connection with fires of mysterious origin.

Fred Chamberlain Liked Mansfield

WHEN Fred Chamberlain came to Mansfield twenty-one years ago as general manager of this division of what is now the Ohio Public Service company, there was no doubt about his "liking" Mansfield and no question about Mansfield people liking him.

In church association, fraternal affiliation and civic activities he fitted immediately into his new surroundings and quickly became a natural part of this community.

Capable and earnest in performance of the duties of his responsible position, he seemed always to find time for those tasks of community service which are so essential to civic well being and advancement.

Quiet, unassuming, but with a tremendous capacity for clear thinking and good judgment, Mr. Chamberlain was a constant inspiration to those associated with him in business and to the many friends and acquaintances privileged to know and to appreciate his fine qualities.

A lover of outdoor life, and of the beauties of Nature, it is quite understandable that Mr. Chamberlain should choose an attractive rural spot as his summer home, and that he should devote as much as possible of his leisure time to surroundings which "give to every time and season some beauties of its own."

An estimate of the impression Mr. Chamberlain made on others is found in the tribute of a close associate: "Kindliness was an outstanding quality in his character"—and when kindliness influences thoughts and actions, manhood is seen at its nearest approach to the ideals to which humanity aspires.

Adjustment to the absence of Fred from the various meetings, associations and activities of which he had been so regularly a part during the past two decades, will not be easy. He will be long remembered by all who knew him.

Favor Freedom to Criticize

MISSOURIANS have been greatly stirred by the sentence imposed on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for contempt of court in criticizing a judge. A Gallup poll indicates that more than seven in every ten persons in the state believe that newspapers should be free to criticize judges' decisions. A further poll shows other parts of the country agreeing with Missouri in the same ratio.

This may seem a little surprising in view of the American people's deep respect for the judicial system and the widespread opposition to any basic change in the structure of the courts. But the two attitudes are not inconsistent and are really in line with American principles.

These principles include respect for authority and obedience to it as long as it is properly exercised, but sharp criticism when it is abused.

It is essential to the functioning of democracy that there be free criticism of public institutions, whether administrative, legislative or judicial.

Children's Pains Need Attention

THERE'S no such thing as "growing pains," says an authority on bone tumors. Therefore when a child complains of discomforts which formerly would have been dismissed as "growing pains" he should be examined at once. It may be something quite serious which, if caught in time, can be cured, but if neglected may cause invalidism or death.

When parents and doctors knew less about these matters, children were allowed to die of unknown diseases, or to suffer needless handicaps in the battle of life. Today medical science doesn't know how to cure everything, by any means, but it knows how to recognize symptoms formerly overlooked and how to prevent the serious consequences of many diseases that were formerly neglected.

Placing the War Blame

POPE PIUS XII blames the disastrous European war on "excessive human covetousness and thirst for power." Sane people everywhere can agree with this reasoning.

It is not necessary to attribute the war to impersonal causes or inevitable conflicts. No matter how the warmakers may explain their procedure, whether as patriotism, wisdom, justice, foresight or what not, it remains the cruel work of ruthless and ambitious men.

They have their days of power, and then the people for whose benefit they profess to be doing all this bloody work will have long years of poverty and grief.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Buddy DeSylva and Irving Berlin, two showmen of a kind, were cornered in the pit of the old empty French Casino. The idea was to learn why Victor Moore, Bill Gaxton, Zorina, Irene Bordoni and a host of boys and girls were running around on the empty stage and trudging upstairs to the mezz, where somebody was lazily pounding a piano.

"A new show," said DeSylva. "A musical comedy," said Berlin. "A sort of political satire on Louisiana," added DeSylva. "We call it," said Berlin, "'Louisiana Purchase.'"

So that was it. Louisiana Purchase. And Vic Moore was a Senator from New England who went south to investigate alleged scandals down there.

"Please understand," said Berlin, "this is all in fun. Just innocent fun. Remember 'Of Thee I Sing?' That was a satire on the White House, on the incoming and the out-going presidents. That was eight years ago. This is a satire on a state. But it's comedy. Musical comedy. Nobody points a moral. Nobody wants to reform anybody. We just turn the crank, and hop on, and let 'er go."

YOUR correspondent inquired whether these gentlemen thought anyone would take offense to anything in the show.

"Well," said DeSylva, "our first scene is a lawyer's office. The lawyer dictates a letter to Irving and me. He tells us we can't put the show on. He says we'll risk being sued. Then he tells us there's a way out. He says we mustn't name a real state, or a real city, or real people, but that we must write about a fictional state."

"That's right," broke in Irving Berlin, "so we built our first musical number around this idea, and we call it our "Explanation to the Audience." We carefully point out, in song, that:

"'The politicians we've investigated,
Could come from Maine, or Kansas or Montana;
So we've laid our story in a mystical state,
A mythical state we call Louisiana.'"

"Because," Berlin went on, "there isn't really a state named Louisiana. Not really. It's one of those fictional Balkan Kingdom ideas. And then we had to make up a name for a city, too, and we incorporated it in the song like this:

"'We laid our scenes
In New Or-leans.
A city we've invented so that there would be no fuss.
If there is such a place, it's certainly news to us.'"

"Which," broke in Mr. DeSylva, "certainly explains the case. It's just like a foreword in a novel, saying any similarity between the characters in the book and in real life is purely coincidental and a big surprise to us. We coined the words 'Louisiana' and 'New Orleans', and I think we are going to have a lot of fun."

* * *

So there it is. "Louisiana Purchase," a new musical comedy, is a fictional story laid in the mythical city of New Orleans in the entirely fictional state of Louisiana. Irene Bordoni takes the role of the owner of a famous restaurant. Zorina will play a bankrupt countess who just has to get hold of $500. Vic Moore is the non-drinking, non-smoking, non-hand-holding senator who investigates conditions. Suddenly a guy named Westbrook Pegler shows up. He is fictional too. What happens from there on is the secret of the Messrs. Berlin and DeSylva, and will be until opening night, which will be sometime this month.

Spring Variety of 'Hay Fever.'

—By DR. CLENDENING

THERE are three hay fever seasons: The early spring one is due to the blooming of the trees; the late spring and early summer one is due to the grasses, and the late summer and early fall, the most severe of all, is due to the ragweeds and cockleburs, and related plants.

It took people a long time to find out the connection between these "spring colds" and "autumnal catarrhs" and the blossoming of the plants. It took them an even longer time to find out just which plants were responsible.

Most people who have "hay fever" or "rose fever" have it during only one season. Very few people are subject to attacks at all three seasons.

Mildest Type.

The mildest of all is the early spring type. This is due to the blooming or pollination of the trees. The succession is as follows:

April 1—box elder, April and May—birch; April 4—ash; April 6—cottonwood; April 25—sycamore; May 1—oak; May 10—alder; May 15—hickory; May 17—walnut; mid April to early June—pecan.

Elm blossoms as early as February in Virginia; farther north in March and April.

The hackberry pollinates in April and May and the mulberry around June.

Geographically, the pecan is found in the Gulf states, eastern Oklahoma, Arkansas, southern Missouri and southern Illinois. The birches are in northeastern United States and eastern Canada, going down the Alleghenies as far as Georgia and westward across the Great Lakes region to Minnesota and the edge of Manitoba.

Other Distributions.

The beeches are solidly distributed over the Eastern Seaboard, almost to the Rockies. The same distribution applies to the oaks. The elms are very widely distributed. The hackberry has a spotty distribution from Florida, seldom getting higher than the lower edge of Pennsylvania on the Atlantic Seaboard, but going into southern Michigan and up the Missouri River Valley. The mulberries can be found from New York to the Gulf States, Missouri and Oklahoma. It is an important hay fever tree in Washington, Williamburg, Petersburg and south to Charleston.

The western cottonwood is a most important cause of hay fever in the Rocky Mountain section, from Utah and the Dakotas to New Mexico and Arizona.

This type of hay fever causes slight rhinitis and coryza, and usually lasts no more than a week. It yields to very simple local treatment with certain drugs in the nose.

Those who are subject to early summer hay fever, coming on in late May and early in June, should consult their physicians about the possibility of vaccine therapy right now. This is the time to take advice about the possibility of prevention of the type of hay fever caused by the grasses.

Defend Your Americanism!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I KNOW a man who spent seven months in one of Mr. Hitler's concentration camps. He was an important man in Germany—a gentle soul who loved music and art and the kindly ways of life. He had an old-fashioned home filled with loveliness and peace. One rare old painting by Van Dyke. A few good rugs. A fragile wife and little daughter whom he adored.

But he had committed one great and unforgivable crime, this man. He had been born a Jew. True, his so-called Jewish fathers had been Germans for generations. They had given their intelligence and industry, year after year, to the land they loved. They were in spirit infinitely more German than the Austrian neurotic and his gang of hoodlums who came to persecute them. Yet, genealogically they were Hebrews.

So one night as this gentle man sat with his family in peace and happiness, Hitler's soldiers came. With their knives they slashed the rare old rugs. With one hammer stroke they wrecked the Van Dyke masterpiece. With their foulness they left a taint on sensitive souls which life can never erase.

So my friend, the Jew, went to a concentration camp and lived for seven months in incredible horror. Today he is in America. He escaped with what was left of his life, his family—and two dollars. For the crime of being a Jew, Hitler seized his home, confiscated his automobile, his business and his fortune.

I say he escaped. But my friend has not escaped that concentration camp. He will be in it always. The mark of its lash is on his slender body, which trembles at any unexpected sound. The brand of its cruelty is on the haunted eyes which stare ahead as only a shackled prisoner must stare ahead, looking neither to right nor to left. And the ghastly stigmata of its sadism is plain in his awful alertness, in his shaking hands, in the withered pallor of his malnourished flesh.

As long as he lives this man will be the victim of a system of government which exists to crush and terrify the beaten souls who cringe beneath its regime.

Why is America?
That is why.
Why should you be proud of your Americanism? Why should you be grateful for it? That is why.

AND WHY SHOULD YOU BEGIN RIGHT NOW TO FIGHT FOR THAT AMERICANISM?

THAT IS WHY.

For it is no longer enough to be proud of Americanism or grateful for it. If you are to enjoy it, you must start to defend it today with every thought and word and deed. For the vision which founded America is in terrible peril at present. Things have happened abroad which endanger all civilization, which menace every decent and humane ideal. The jungle has broken loose! The beasts are out!

KING KONG HAS CAPTURED EUROPE!

ONLY A THIN LINE STANDS TODAY BETWEEN THE PRINCIPLES OF DECENCY AND THE POWERS OF DARKNESS.

If we wish to save our freedom . . . if we wish to save our self-respect . . . if we wish to save the peace and happiness of our homes and the prosperity of our businesses . . . we too must take our stand. We can no longer take our heritage indifferently or nonchalantly. We must become aware of the priceless privilege which is ours. We must become alert to the shadow which threatens and nears.

WE MUST FIGHT ONCE MORE TO KEEP IN OUR HEARTS THE PRINCIPLES THAT ARE SYNONYMOUS WITH OUR FREEDOM!

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — When Ambassador Phillips called upon Mussolini last week it was the first time in a year and a half (with one exception) that a U. S. envoy had seen the real dictator of Italy.

The one exception was when Sumner Welles visited Rome and insisted that Ambassador Phillips sit in on his talk with Mussolini. For eighteen months prior to that, Il Duce had not seen one foreign diplomat except the German.

The latest conference between Phillips and Mussolini came about only because the president of the United States personally requested it. In fact, he virtually demanded that his ambassador be received by Mussolini himself and not by an underling.

This request was granted, but in the course of the interview the Italian dictator told Phillips that he did not have time to discuss the entire situation, and asked the envoy to see his son-in-law, Count Ciano, the next day.

Not generally known but extremely significant was the fact that the British had asked the U. S. to see what could be done to ascertain Mussolini's war aims. No British or French envoy has been able to see him.

When Ambassador Phillips finally got in to the inner sanctum, he did not approach the war question directly. Naturally no ambassador can ask the ruler of any country whether he intends to make war. So instead, Phillips raised the question of American shipping in the Mediterranean, and remarked that it would have to be withdrawn if the situation became more tense.

He particularly emphasized the hope that nothing would interfere with the traditional friendly relations between the U. S. and Italy. He expressed deep concern regarding the growing tension in the Mediterranean and warned that in view of this tension the U. S. might have to cut off all its supplies to Italy.

This, of course, would be a serious blow to Mussolini, especially in its effect upon vital gasoline shipments.

It was at this point that Mussolini replied reassuringly, and indicated that American shipping did not have to worry. But there was nothing very definite or categoric in what he said. He did not specifically promise that there would be no war.

Italian-U. S. Trade.

HOWEVER, Ambassador Phillips discusssed another matter which also required an optimistic atmosphere, a trade treaty between the United States and Italy.

This had been proposed about three years ago, but was dropped because the Italians demanded too much. Particularly they demanded that the treaty be signed by the "King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia"—which would recognize Italy's conquest of that country.

Non-recognition of territory obtained by force is one of the rock-ribbed foreign policies of the United States, particularly in Manchuria. It was outlined first by William Jennings Bryan, reaffirmed by Henry L. Stimson, and continued by Roosevelt. So the trade treaty with Italy, then proposed, went up the flue.

Now, however, new negotiations are in the works, and it looks as if this time the United States would not object to letting King Victor Emmanuel sign his John Henry on the treaty as "Emperor of Ethiopia." The state department now inclines toward the view that this would not weaken our non-recognition policy.

Conquers With Ink.

BEHIND all this is the policy which the Washington diplomatic corps calls "Buttering Up Benito." Another name for it of course, is "Benito's Blackmail."

In other words, Mussolini knows he is now the "swing man" of Europe, can gouge almost anything he wants out of his neighbors, and is very busy doing it. Every belligerent editorial published by the Fascist press, every radio war warning issued by Grandi, adds to the jitters of the Allies and sends Mussolini's blackmail price higher.

Some diplomats figure that he has won more through the inexpensive medium of printer's ink than any man in history. For Mussolini is playing both sides against the middle. From Hitler he has already won the promise of a free hand in the Balkans. From the French he has won a recent invitation to discuss the problem of North Africa. And from the United States he may win a trade treaty and left-handed recognition of Ethiopia.

How far the trade treaty discussions with Italy will go remains to be seen. There is no question that the president regards Mussolini as the key for European peace or for tipping the scales for violent war. So he wants to butter him up.

Senator Nye on Benito.

QUOTE of the week comes from Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota: "Mussolini is like Southern Republican delegates—easy to buy but hard to keep bought."

British Get Tougher.

MEANWHILE important intelligence cables report that the British and French military group believe that the time has come to take the war initiative, instead of waiting on the sidelines for Hitler to knock down neutral after neutral. These more vigorous elements inside the Allied war councils are tired of bowing to "Benito's Blackmail" and now urge a blitzkrieg naval war against the Italian fleet.

It was either to prepare for this or else to do-to-Mussolini-what-Hitler-has-done-to-the-Allies (scare him to death) that the Allied fleet suddenly was concentrated off Egypt.

The Allied military argument is that they sadly needed to repair their shattered political prestige as the result of the withdrawal from Norway, and that if some quick action is not taken to box Mussolini's ears, all of the Balkans will go over to him.

On the other hand, there is the more cautious Chamberlain group which argues that the Allies never must put themselves in the position of being the aggressors, must always wait for the dictators to act first. That is the tug of war over strategy now going on in London and Paris.

Iceland and U. S.

THERE is a lot more behind the rushing of American consuls to Greenland and Iceland than appears on the surface.

Boiled down to cold facts, the Roosevelt administration is afraid of a Nazi air base only 1500 miles from Maine. Bombing planes already have been developed which can fly this far — loaded.

Therefore many more preparations are going on than the state department is announcing, all in order to keep these Danish islands in the North Atlantic from being taken over by Hitler.

One such move is the probable sending of U. S. army planes to Iceland in the not too distant future to carry mail. Probably they will be army bombers—without the bombs.

Red Cross stations also will be established. And most significant of all, one of the men being sent by the state department to Iceland is a West Point graduate.

Meanwhile the prime minister of Iceland has been in direct cable communication with the state department, and reports the Icelanders eager for close co-operation, if not the actual protection of the United States.

Grass Fire

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN LATE afternoon a farmer fired a field of weeds and grass. The wind was briskly from the west. The slope toward the east was pasture, while beyond stood thickly wooded timber. Heavy vapory smoke rose from the kindling pile of long dried grass the man had ignited. A flame played several inches above the heated growth and I heard the crackle of the gaining fire. The farmer had his five-tined fork that he uses for cleaning stables. With it he lifted a heap of the burning stuff and rapidly scattered small brands along the length of the whole strip. Then he stood leaning on his fork and watched the progress of the fire with satisfaction.

Along an uneven front of 60 rods it leaped up and down like something living that snapped and hissed continuously. The stubble was badly charred, but here and there from little hollows small bits of eddying smoke curled in the direction of the wind. A meagre strip separated the singing fire from the pasture. The pasture slope was green and I believed, as the farmer did, that here the flames would stop. We figured wrong. The fire kept moving up the slope, sending up a soft gray smoke screen that blotted out the woods.

The farmer was no longer leaning complacently on his fork. He disappeared into the smoke and then I saw two neighbors and a boy of 12 or so appear from a field nearby, with shovels in their hands. The flat side of the shovels beat upon the burning grass or clanged against an occasional boulder. The figures of the men loomed dimly in the smoke.

It seemed a winning battle at first, but the men tired and smouldering sparks were caught by the wind and fanned into jubilant flames again. Behind the fighters, the fire crept stealthily into the border of the woods.

That night, all night, far off against the hill, the timber burned. Tall snags made flaming torches as they fell and for several days the odor of burning wood and grass was in evidence, while a bluish smoky pall hung across the bosom of the valley.

OF HEAVEN'S BENEDICTION++

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Carter, her mother dead, her father remarried, quits as secretary to a Chatham, N. H., physician and goes to New York to act as secretary-companion to wealthy Mrs. Kingsbury whom she had met while the old lady was boarding with Rod Westover's mother Grace in the New Hampshire town. Really Brooke has come to New York to be near Rod, to whom she has been engaged for four years and who has been very successful in his work for Barney Glass since he finished college three years ago.

CHAPTER II.

It's been three months since I've seen him, she thought, and I'm as excited as if he were a new lover I was trying to impress. Odd, having known him so long, she could still feel confused, wordless, her emotions shaking her, his touch shutting out everything except the sensation of his touch.

The elevator stopped abruptly and she stepped off, noting instantly that Rod's dark clothes were new. He looked tired but he was smiling, his dark eyes taking in all of her as he removed a brown hat from his black hair. Always he must look at her like this. And always the sight of him must stir her and take away her breath a little and cause her face to burn.

"Darling," Rod said and gave her a brief embrace and a light kiss. "This is a surprise!"

"I've others Surprises. I mean," and laughed lightly, feeling a tide of great happiness sweep over her."

"Any particular place you want to have dinner?' Rod asked.

"It doesn't matter. You always take me to a different place."

"I want to know what all this mystery is about and why you're in New York on Thursday"

He looked perplexed, curious. She laughed happily.

They got a taxi and sat close, their hands joined. He looked at her again, his eyes searching hers soberly before he kissed her again.

"I've missed you, Rod . . ."

"I've missed you. And writing letters . . ."

She did not want an apology. "Sometimes there isn't anything to say."

"I've been so busy at the office all day and sometimes half the night . . ."

"You take it so seriously, darling"

His smile was a little bitter. "Yes, don't I? How is mother?"

"Fine now. She sent her love and wants you to come home."

He frowned at that. "She just doesn't understand that I can't get away."

"Was your western trip successful?"

"Yes, quite."

"I'm afraid nothing is ever quite so perfect as you want it, Rod."

"Except you"

Their eyes met again, then their lips. Her hands pressed against his shoulders. He looked so tired. Business took so much out of him. Breathlessly against his face, she said "I love you."

"And I love you, Brooke. You're so beautiful—and so dear."

"You write 'I love you' but it never means as much as when you say it—close to me."

He smiled. "That's a crazy hat you're wearing."

"All hats are crazy."

"I like it. It's becoming."

"Thank you. How is Jim?"

"Oh, that's something I have to tell you. I've moved."

He took her to a place where a famous orchestra played mellow music. An expensive place, she thought. The best for her! She was too happy to analyze the gesture in any other way.

He ordered cocktails and lighted a cigaret. "Well? What is this all about?"

She leaned forward. "I've come to stay—at least for several months. It was the summer you stayed at school to do extra work that Mrs. Kingsbury came to your mother's. You must remember our talking about her."

"The rich old lady?"

"Yes! She was born and raised just outside Chatham and married a wealthy man and has spent nearly all her life traveling. That summer she came back to Chatham was her first visit in 45 years. She knew our grandparents. I saw a good bit of her that summer when she asked me to write some letters and read to her. Her eyesight is very poor Well, last week she stopped in Chatham again with your mother and sent for me. She plans to live in New York for the rest of the winter and asked me to live with her as a sort of secretary-companion until she goes to California in June. . . ."

"You won't go with her?"

"No. Not that far away. From you?" She has a niece in California whom she visits every year. Rod, I took it because I could be near you. . . ."

It's wonderful but—but isn't she just a cranky old lady who'll be difficult?"

"I wouldn't exactly call her a sweet old lady but she's quiet, at least, and . . ."

Rod laughed. "It's fantastic but it's—it's great, of course! She might die and leave you all her money."

"That isn't likely. Her niece in California has children."

"Too bad. Where are you going to live here?"

"She's taken an apartment which is being made ready for us now. She has a maid, Ellen, and a chauffeur, Francis. I'm to write letters, go shopping with her and to pictures, and read to her and make things in general easier for her. For which I'm to be paid a hundred dollars a month." And thought, when a chic young woman passed, that she would buy clothes with the first check. "She's visiting in Boston now and she'll arrive her on Monday. I came down a few days before—to see you. And another thing," she added brightly, "all my nights will be free after 9. Mrs. Kingsbury has to go to bed early."

He nodded, not smiling, his eyes absent. "What did your father think of this, Brooke?"

"He thought I was foolish and impulsive to give up a permanent position to accept a temporary one. But this offer was a passport to you."

The tips of his fingers touched hers. "It's swell. We'll do a lot . . ."

When their cocktails came, she said, "You said you'd moved, Rod. . . ."

He nodded, lighting a cigarette. "Yes. To a larger apartment, alone. I'll take you there later. I hated the additional expense but—but appearances are important and I had to have a place where I could have people in. The other place was pretty awful, and Jim had a habit of bringing the oddest people at all hours. He didn't like it, my moving."

Looking at her, he said gently, "You understand, don't you, that if I'm to get anywhere certain things are expected of me. And where you live and the people you know are important. I had a substantial salary increase after the western trip and I've got to put all of it into better living, better clothes."

She told herself that she must understand, that she must not say she would be satisfied with very little if they would marry quite soon and that Grace, overworked, deserved rest and leisure. Rod clear-headed, trained, efficient, was undoubtedly right. If they waited a little longer. . .

"Of course you must."

With relief he said, "I knew you'd understand. Jim didn't."

"You and Jim didn't . . ."

"Yes we had a row. He couldn't see my point of view at all. I couldn't see his."

"Perhaps I can make him see yours." They had been such good friends for so long.

"Perhaps you can. He's crazy about you." Then, "That music is too good to waste."

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

May 5th To 12th

In Connection With Clean-Up Week Sponsored By The Junior Association of Commerce

"Do's and Don'ts" In Fire Prevention
From
Fire Chief Chas. J. Seeburger

DO

look for the approval label of Underwriter's Laboratories on electrical appliances and cords before buying them.

DO

employ an expert electrician for all repairs or extensions to wiring.

DO

keep your attic and cellar clear of papers and rubbish, Place a screen in front of the fireplace.

DO

make sure that all gas connections are rigid and tight (avoid rubber or flexible tubing.) Keep matches in metal containers and out of the reach of children.

DO

install a ceiling of cement or gypsum plaster on metal lath in the cellar (at least in the furnace room.) Change the door leading out of the cellar to one of heavy construction that closes tightly.

DO

place fire stops of incombustible material between the studs in walls at all floor levels. Keep roofs in good condition as hot sparks or fire brands cause fire if they are blown into cracks or on loose materials.

DON'T

force heating plants in cold weather. Call in a heating expert to locate the trouble if you can't keep warm.

DON'T

bridge a blown fuse with a coin or wire. Always disconnect heat-producing electrical appliances when you are finished with them.

DON'T

forget to clean chimneys, furnaces and stoves.

DON'T

forget to repair or replace all worn, broken or rusted parts or pipes. Protect any material charred by radiated heat.

DON'T forget to keep all paint-stained or oil-soaked rags or mops in covered metal can unless they can be washed and hung out to dry.

DON'T

forget to use only correct size electric fuses.

Because disaster has never knocked at your door, is no sign or reason that it never will. BE PREPARED FOR THESE EMERGENCIES . . . Your property need not be a total loss, if your insurance is adequate. Think of the fact that there is a fire in thousands of homes daily . . . that it's always the result of an "accidental" cleaning fluid explosion, curtain catching fire from the stove, or cigarette. Remember that you owe it to yourself and others to be adequately insured and also remember that "IT CAN HAPPEN HERE."

Posture Important To Health

By MME. QUI VIVE

It isn't fair to bawl out the girl whose shoulders have rounded. This defect is not always due to faulty posture, but to some anatomic condition. Children who are not properly nourished, who don't get enough sunshine and outdoor fun, may suffer from it. If it continues until growth is attained, cure is difficult, the small bones of the spinal column having changed in character. In early childhood braces and even casts are used.

To make the deformity less noticeable it is advisable to develop a strong musculature. Also maintain a stretched-tall spinal column, a practice which will increase the vitality of the muscles of the back.

The spinal column is the main support of the body. It has thirty four joints which give suppleness of motion. It is held in place with innumerable muscles. Incorrect posture weakens these fibers. They soldier on the job. Shoulders fall forward, and the backbone assumes a position that is not natural and which gives the figure unlovely lines.

Blessed with ordinary health and opportunities for outdoor sports, any girl should be able to avoid round shoulders. She must not carry her head low because then the arms fall forward and the upper portion of the back is curved. The high chest makes for better posture, as it does for better health, because then the lungs are fully air-washed and circulation is normal. The contracted chest means a colorless complexion, which is no beauty bargain.

Stretching exercises are recommended because they ease up the strain on the little cushions or cartilages between the vertebrae, which become tight and bound when a girl carries herself in a sloppy manner and side-steps muscular activity. Stand erect, lift the hands high, come up on your toes, see how tall you can make yourself.

All stretching exercises keep the figure young and erect and increase the organic vigor of the heart and lungs. We urge the members of the beauty class to give attention to the fibers of their bodies, not let them go slack to beckon fat cells to come and find free lodgings.

The wise mother will watch little daughter to see that she holds her body beautifully when sitting, walking, standing. Children who bend over desks and tables often assume positions that weaken the ligaments that are attached to the hips and the spine. If posture is poor, the family doc will suggest corrective exercises.

HOSPITAL TESTS REVEAL GREAT DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

At last—here's an ideal, "daily" treatment for constipation with its headaches, mental dullness, fatigue and sallow skin.

Tests in a world-famous hospital have proved a "little daily dose" of Kruschen (world-famous formula, now at last obtainable in pleasant tasting "bubbling" form) actually produces nature's own gentle, pleasant, "daily" bowel movements by keeping the waste matter in the colon moist, soft and easy to expel.

Scientists report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Also acts as a mild Antacid and Kidney Stimulant. Gives you MORE for your money, too! A jar that costs only a trifle lasts for WEEKS. Over 245,000,000 jars have been sold thruout the world. Kruschen MUST be good—it MUST do the work! Made in U. S. A.

Now Comes In Pleasant Tasting "Bubbling" Form!

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Steady, girl!" Lillian admonished me as from the library window we saw the Veritzen "cavalcade" sweep round the corner of the house. "Don't you dare get jittery, or I'll paddle you."

I pulled my frayed nerves into shape with a mighty effort, and rose from my chair.

"Don't you think we ought to welcome them at the threshold?" I asked with a feeble attempt at lightness.

"That would seem to be where the mistress of the castle should be," she replied, without rising.

"I agree with you," I said firmly, going over to her chair and pulling her up from it. "I don't stir a step without you."

"You very well know I was only waiting to be asked," she said, laughing, and, linking her arm in mine, went with me to the veranda.

We were halted in the hall by Katie with the breathless, excited — and superfluous — information that "dot Meester Veritzen and loads of oder peoples were coming up the veranda steps."

"Yes, thank you, Katie, we know," I said, and was proceeding to the door when she caught my dress.

"All dose peoples stay to loonch?" she queried with dismay in her tone."

"No, indeed," I said, "but I want you to have little cake sand sandwiches ready, so that I can serve tea after a while."

"Dot easy," she replied with an airy toss of her head. "I shoost start baking dose cakes right avay. Den dey be fresh. You no have tea for vun hour und half—not so?"

"More nearly two," I told her, and she released my dress abruptly.

"Dot fine!" she commented cheerily. "Now you no boder your head any more. Me, I fecx," and she was gone on the familiar cheering assurance, while I advanced to the door, the old knocker of which Philip Veritzen was already sounding, and threw it wide open, bracing myself to "put on an act," as Dicky would phrase it.

"Welcome to the farm!" I said cheerily, as I held out my hand to Mr. Veritzen and nodded to the men and women coming up the steps behind him. "Please come right in to the library."

Lillian, as always, come to the rescue.

"Lo, Phil, old darling," she said, slipping her arm through his. "Let me guide you to the nicest open fire this side of the hot place. Follow us, folks!" She raised her voice ever so lightly. "We haven't been introduced yet, but that little matter can be attended to when we get into the library."

I plunged into the social task of introducing the newcomers to Lillian.

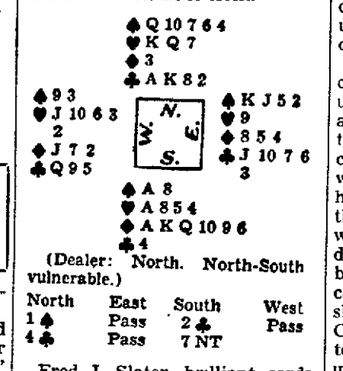
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PLAYS SELDOM SEEN

Most of the fancy plays known to advanced players are found in one game or another every once in a while. Some of them, however, though thoroughly understood, seldom are witnessed except in problem hands deliberately set up to furnish an interesting puzzle. When one of them does develop in actual play, it is worth recording, and proves the value of having learned the play. One of the prettiest of these is a rare sort of squeeze, in which one defender is obliged on a certain trick to discard in such a way that he puts his partner at the mercy of the declarer on the next trick.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	7 NT

Fred J. Slater, brilliant cardsman in the South, was almost ready for the big slam as soon as he heard his partner's opening bid, and his club call was merely as insurance to help prevent a lead of that suit. When West led the heart J, he counted a dozen tricks, with a squeeze chance for the 13th. He won the first trick with the K, played the Q and noted East's club discard, planned the rest of the play then and embarked on the scheme by playing to the spade A. Then he ran the diamonds.

On the last diamond, the ninth trick, West had to hold two hearts to guard that suit, so was obliged to cut down to two clubs, leaving that suit to his partner. Poor East could not do it, because he also had to protect his side against the spade Q. He was all right until the heart A was led to the tenth trick. Declarer discarded the spade Q from dummy, as he held the spade 8 and West had long since got rid of his spade 9. A club discard by East here would have built up the dummy's third club, so he tossed the spade K, and the 8 became good in South's hand for the eleventh trick, clubs, giving Mr. Slater the last two needed.

Coffee Adds Taste Thrill

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Let's cut some coffee capers.

Cafe Chantilly is made with one egg white, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-fourth cup heavy cream, whipped, and hot, freshly-made coffee. Beat egg white until stiff but not dry; add sugar gradually and continue beating; add vanilla. Fold in whipped cream and egg together. Top each cup of coffee with a spoonful of this mixture. Makes six to eight servings.

Coffee Egg Nog is made with two egg yolks, five teaspoons sugar, two cups double-strength, freshly-made coffee, two cups milk, scalded, and two egg whites Beat egg yolks and sugar together until well blended. Add freshly-made hot coffee and milk. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, add the coffee-milk mixture. Serves six.

Caramel Charlotte Russe is a company special. For six servings use one cup evaporated milk, one and one-half teaspoons gelatin, two tablespoons cold water, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup boiling water, few grains salt and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Chill milk thoroughly. Soften gelatin in cold water and set over hot water to dissolve. Caramelize sugar, add the boiling water slowly and cook until caramel is dissolved. Add salt. Cool slightly and add dissolved gelatin. Cool. When gelatin mixture begins to thicken, whip milk stiff and fold into cold gelatine mixture. Add vanilla. Pour into a mold lined with lady fingers. Chill before serving.

Apple Cake

Use left-over cooked apples to make a good cake. To four ounces cooked apples, add one ounce bread crumbs, two large tablespoons marmalade, a little grated lemon rind and a beaten egg. Make some short pastry, line pans with it and put in a spoonful of the apple mixture. Bake 10 minutes in quick oven.

Hot Cheese Biscuits make a nice savory. Take two ounces grated Parmesan cheese, add the same weight of butter and flour. Knead together and roll to the desired thickness. Cut into small rounds and bake for 10 minutes If liked, these biscuits may be spread with a little anchovy or sardellen butter before serving.

Here is an answer to a request for a good substitute for egg whites that can be relied upon for turning out excellent macaroons and meringues. Dissolve one tablespoon powdered gelatin in two tablespoons of hot but not boiling water. Stir until completely dissolved, then leave until cold. Use this in just the same way as you use egg whites. Incidentally, icing made in this way does not crack when dry but sets with a good gloss.

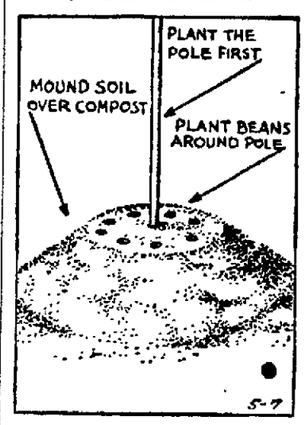
Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



PROPERLY PLANTING POLE LIMA BEANS

To plant pole lima beans properly, one should first plant the pole. While the pole will undoubtedly be hardy, the pole lima beans are much less hardy than bush lima beans and therefore should not be planted until all danger of a late frost has passed. Although pole lima beans mature later than the bush variety, they are more prolific.

Pole limas should be planted in hills composed of a rich compost or manure covered over with several inches of soil. As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, first plant the pole in the center of each hill. Use poles eight to 12 feet long, setting them eighteen inches into the ground. Plant six or eight beans around the pole, as illustrated. Plant the beans on edge, eyes down. Later thin out the plants, leaving only three or four of the strongest.

If the plants appear to be making more growth than pods later in the season, cut off the top of the plant at the top of the pole in order to divert the plant's energy into the production of pods.

Wife Preservers

To freshen a black cloth dress first go over it with the vacuum cleaner, then remove stains with cleaning fluid. After that sponge with hot water, and iron on wrong side through damp cloth

LIE DETECTOR GIVEN THRILL

Secretary's Reaction to Kiss Threat Swings Pointers Nearly Off Board.

INDIANAPOLIS — (INS) — Indianapolis police added a new instrument to their crime detection apparatus today—a "lie detector" so sensitive that it almost broke down under the emotional reaction of a girl who thought she was about to be kissed.

Describing the device to the board of safety, Leonard Keeler, Northwestern university psychologist and inventor of the machine, said he tried it out on his secretary one day.

"Suddenly, I told her I was going to kiss her," the scientist said. "The pointers almost swung off the graph."

Without further ado, the board decided to purchase the apparatus.

Its inventor said the instrument measures skin resistance, a more delicate indicator of emotional response, in addition to registering respiration and blood pressure.

For instance, he said, if a person is asked to select one card from a group of ten, and then these cards are shown to him with the comment, "Is this the one you chose?" A peak of tension will be reached when the correct one is shown. This tension, according to Keeler, will be reflected by an increase in skin moisture.

HOSPITAL BILL FINALLY PAID

WATERLOO, N. Y.—(U P)—Mrs Alice M Yaw, Waterloo Memorial Hospital superintendent, exhibits a faded slip of paper and a $2 bill as proof that most hospital patients believe honesty the best policy.

The currency, she said, came from a man who walked into her office and stated he wished to pay an eight-year-old bill. The man was injured on Memorial Day, 1932, at the local race track and after being treated at the hospital, left without settling the small bill.

"I've come a long way to pay this bill," the man said, "but I feel a lot better now."

The ordinary house-cat is known to have been established in Italy before the Christian era.

NEW ANESTHETIC

Simple Way to Put Dental Patients to Sleep.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A new and simple way of putting dental patients to sleep for long and complicated operations without harmful after effects, was described to dentists by Dr. Edward Reiter of Cleveland before the Cleveland Dental society's annual spring clinic.

The new anaesthetic is injected intravenously into the arm and the patient usually yawns and has gone to sleep before the needle is out of his arm, Dr. Reiter said, adding "The patient will sleep from 12 to 20 minutes before awakening. After he wakes there is no shock or nausea."

Its disadvantage, he maintained, is that once the new fluid—known as sodium pentathol—is injected into the arm it cannot be reclaimed from the blood stream. Should something go wrong with the patient, he could be revived by administering oxyger, he stated.

Dr. Reiter believes that the injection will not be practical for general practice however, because a patient who has taken the anaesthetic has to remain in the doctor's office for at least an hour and even then "you cannot let him drive an automobile home," he concluded.

Dewey Picks Up Twenty-Four Delegates In Primaries

MARYLAND AND IDAHO VOTERS AID ATTORNEY

Four States Complicate Voting In California; Wheeler Urges 'Plank' Meet.

(By Associated Press)

Twenty-four Republican convention delegates from Maryland and Idaho were enrolled under Thomas E. Dewey's banner today, while California Democrats were registering their third term views in a complicated primary election.

Dewey delegates led an uninstructed slate by more than seven to one in Maryland's Republican primary yesterday. At the same time the Idaho Republican convention broke tradition and voted 133 to 68 to instruct its eight delegates to support the New York district attorney.

Maryland Democrats, with no presidential aspirant running on their preferential ballot, renominated Sen. George Radcliffe, onetime business associate of President Roosevelt, by nearly a two to one margin over National Committeeman Howard Bruce.

In the California Democratic primary, four delegate slates were entered. One was pledged to President Roosevelt and one to Vice President Garner. Two others, one of which was led by "ham and eggs" pension forces, were uninstructed. One uninstructed slate was on the Republican ballot.

Besides the California voting, there were primaries today in four other states, as follows:

Alabama: Democrats were choosing 22 national convention delegates from men pledged to the favorite son candidacy of Speaker Bankhead. Bankhead was unopposed for renomination to the house, but five colleagues had opposition.

Florida: More than half the 88 candidates for 14 national convention votes announced support of a third term; Sen. Charles Andrews was opposed for Democratic renomination by five candidates, including Governor Fred P. Cone.

Indiana: Both major parties were choosing nominees for 12 house seats, along with state convention delegates. Townsend pension forces were trying to defeat Reps. Charles A. Halleck and George W. Gillie, Republicans.

South Dakota: Republican and Democratic national delegations of eight members each were uninstructed. Congressional candidates in each party had no opposition, but there were gubernatorial contests.

While selection of convention delegates continued, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) suggested in Washington that Democratic leaders take a cue from the Republicans and meet in advance of the national convention July 15 to draft "fundamental principles" for a party platform.

The Republican platform committee will gather in Philadelphia a week before that party's June 24 convention to begin work on its declaration of policy.

From another well-informed senator, it was learned that President Roosevelt already is formulating his ideas for the Democratic platform and that his followers were planning to present them to the platform committee in detail.

Republican platform talk brought a suggestion from Senator Nye (R-ND) that the party should approve a foreign policy plank "suggesting strong, specific steps for keeping out of war."

Crestline Man, 58, Electrocuted as He Works at Plant

CRESTLINE—A short circuit in a sand-cutting machine was blamed today for the electrocution death of William Fleiner, 58, an employe of the Schill Manufacturing company, found dead last night at the plant.

Dr. O. A. Kackley, Crawford county coroner, said Fleiner was operating the machine and said the machine had become short circuited in some manner, killing the workman almost instantly.

Steve Hunel, night watchman, found the body when he came on duty at midnight.

Fleiner was born in Austria, Aug. 15, 1881, and in 1909 he and his wife, the former Margaret Lang, came to Crestline.

Surviving are his wife, and six children, Martin of Galion, William, David, Elizabeth, George and Evelyn, all at home.

He as a member of the Trinity Lutheran church and the Sons of Herman lodge.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The body was removed to the Garverick funeral home.

Harry Fay today holds the honor of being the first Mansfield golfer to score an ace this season and to win a place in golf's Hall of Fame. Playing in a threesome at Possum Run yesterday, Fay, using a six-iron, marked up his hole-in-one on the No. 2, par three hole. His drive landed on the edge of the green, bounded onto the green and rolled into the cup. Others in the threesome were Lee Weaver and A. Pfiider.

Miss Ruth Dunham of the Senior high school faculty, today was confronted with a housing problem, but this one is confined to animals and not persons. Over the week-end Miss Dunham purchased three snails to put in her gold fish bowl, given her recently by one of her classes, and when she went to feed the fish yesterday morning before going to school she found to her surprise that in addition to three snails there were 10 little snails crawling around on the bottom of the bowl.

The porch light at the home of Mrs. George A. Levy, 73 Highland avenue, is temporarily out of commission. But there is no work for the electrician there, for the only thing wrong with the light is "bird trouble." A pair of robbins built a nest on top of the light and there are several tiny blue eggs in it. Mrs. Levy will not permit the light to be turned on for fear of disturbing the mother bird. Last year blue jays built a nest in the top of a washline post in the Levy's back yard.

If there were no other indication that spring is really here there would be the "dog complaints" on the police log. There were four complaints on the record this morning of dogs that tore up flower beds and new lawns, and some that "chased" pedestrians. Albert Bullock, Garden Acres, was the only one, however, who actually met up with a dog with serious intentions. He reported that a dog at 535 Olivesburg road had bitten him on the leg.

FORM UNION AT GILEAD PLANT

Hydraulic Employes Organize, File Complaint With Labor Board on Shutdown.

MT. GILEAD — Organization of a union among employes of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing company here and the lodging of a complaint against the company with the Labor Relations board in Washington was announced today.

A. J. Skundor, grand lodge representative of the International Association of Machinists, an A. F. of L. affiliate, said that 100 employes of the Hydraulic company had been initiated at a meeting held at the Claypool dance hall last Friday night.

Skundor said the complaint to the labor board, charging unfair labor practices had been made following the refusal of Howard MacMillin, president of the company, to meet with a grievance committee of the local, which has applied to the international lodge for a charter.

Skundor and representatives of the new union also charged that the shutdown of the night shifts at the plant, ordered last Thursday, was a lock-out to discourage union organization, and not because of inefficiency in operation, as the management had claimed.

Officers of the union were announced as David Rathbur, president; Robert Garster, recording secretary, and Richard Hickman, financial secretary. All are from Mt. Gilead. Members of the grievance committee were listed as Hickman, Howard L. Long, Mt. Gilead and Herbert Campbell, Cardington.

BALLET-CHORAL CONCERT WINS PRAISE; BROMFIELD GIVES TALK

By JANE WILLIAMS

You don't have to go to New York City or the metropolitan centers to hear good music today, Louis Bromfield told an audience of more than 700 last night at Senior high school auditorium when he spoke before the opening of the ballet-choral concert presented by Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson.

The concert, presented with the Mansfield Singers club and the Cleveland ballet under the direction of Sergi Popeloff, was a part of Mansfield's recognition of National Music week.

Bromfield, who was music critic of "Musical America" before he began his career as a novelist, said that today good music may be had by the humblest person, and that once an individual has learned to love and appreciate good music, he has acquired something indestructable and something that can never be taken away from him.

"Because of the chaos in Europe," he said, "it can no longer be looked to as the guardian of the culture of western civilization, and that responsibility now devolves upon America."

Bromfield was introduced by Rev. David N. Roller, who also paid tribute to Mrs. Jameson for her cultural contributions to Mansfield.

There were about 50 singers in the orchestra pit of the auditorium and their choral music provided the background for the dancers.

Throughout the concert unusual lighting arrangements were used so that the stage was always obscured and the dancers in bold and colorful relief. For the "Blue Danube" ballet, the dancers wore shades of blue costumes and the stage was enveloped in a lovely blue light.

The most impressive of the dances was the ballet "Dance of the Hours" from La Gioconda," in which the story is told, first by the "Birds of Dawn," and last, by the "Guardians of the Night," the Queen of the Night and the Wandering Prince.

An effective number was the Tales From Vienna Woods," in which the choral group was at its best, and which was interpreted gracefully on the stage by Miss Lois McDonald. The lights gave the effect of sunlight filtering through the leaves of trees. "Song of India," the Chinese love story, and the Dutch and Russian numbers were attractively done by singers and dancers.

The audience was a most appreciative one, paying tribute to both the singers and the dancers, and the general feeling, expressed on all sides after the concert, was that it was the most attractive affair that Mrs. Jameson has presented to date.

Only three solo voices were heard during the concert. Miss Betty Austin and Miss Sara Catherine Wallace carried the vocal obligatos during the Gypsy ballet and Arthur Boyce was the soloist in "The Lost Chord."

Pianists were Margaret B. Hall, Louise Reynolds, both of Mansfield and Marguerite Hoffacker of of Cleveland.

GETS CONTRACT

Edison Man to Enlarge Sewage Plant at Mt. Gilead.

MT. GILEAD—G. K. Kohbarger, Edison contractor, was awarded a contract last night by city council for improving the city's sewage disposal plant on his low bid of $8,675.

Two other contractors submitted bids. They were G. N. Leach of Franklin, O., who asked $16,555 for the work, and Harry Strodbeck of Mt. Vernon who asked $10,862.

The contract calls for the construction of a two-story building to house the sewage disposal equipment and the installation of apparatus to increase the capacity of the plant from 200,000 gallons a day to 500,000 gallons a day.

Funds for the improvement will come from a $12,000 bond issue voted overwhelmingly at a special election several weeks ago. Work is expected to start in about 10 days.

ENDORSES PLAN IN CONFERENCE WITH BIG FOUR

Calls in Congressional Heads After Return to Capital From Hudson River.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house judiciary committee voted 14 to 11 today to revive the Hatch political practices bill and give it further consideration.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Back in the White House from a week-end visit to his boyhood home on the upper reaches of the Hudson river, President Roosevelt assumed personal charge today of the fight for extension of Hatch act restrictions on political activities of state employes receiving a portion of their salary checks from the federal government.

He summoned the legislative "big four"—Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn—to the executive offices to map strategy for bringing amendments to the "clean politics" bill out of a house pigeonhole and onto the floor for a vote.

At the same time the chief executive sounded out the congressional leaders on their best guesses as to the date of congressional adjournment. Mr. Roosevelt is interested in an early June adjournment so that he will be able to make his projected transcontinental swing, which may include a sea dash to Alaska.

The president said yesterday he is giving the trip no further thought until he is sure congress will clear out of the capital in time for him to launch his tour.

He will return by a northern route whether or not he takes the excursion to Alaska. On his return he may pause at Isle Royal park to cruise on the Great Lakes. The 21-day trip will loverlap the Republican national convention, which opens in Philadelphia June 24.

Mr. Roosevelt gave his unqualified endorsement to the Hatch bill amendments in an unexpected press conference aboard his special train yesterday afternoon as he sped back to the capital hours ahead of schedule for, as he said, no particular reason except that he had a case of nerves over the European situation, feeling that a break on the war front is impending.

In the press conference, which was apparently called to put the president on record on the Hatch act amendments, Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped the measure could be brought to the floor of the house, voted upon and passed. The senate already has approved it.

The one presidential sentence was expected to supply the impetus necessary to drive the measure to passage.

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

The town, which has had its seedy moments this season, is beginning to look slick again, with Noel Coward strolling the aisles, the Lunts generating electricity behind the footlights, Charles Boyer looking the island over, and Cole Porter bending his quick ear to the songs sung at midnight. All the late scene needs now is Beatrice Lillie in her Paris dress and her boy's haircut, sitting at a round table in the Stork Club, drinking pale beer and making people laugh.

The big evening was Monday, with "There Shall Be No Night" opening, and afterwards the dancing places glittered with first nighters, chief among them being Mr. Coward, fresh off the boat from the war zone, and looking very fit. Looking, as a matter of fact, as if he had put on quite a bit of weight.

The excitement of the premiere was almost too much for him; he could not keep his seat, and kept disappearing through the door leading backstage, where, presumably, he went to see Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, and tell them how well they were doing.

He wore the mien of a man who was glad to be here, happy to walk among old friends. When he saw Fredric March, he greeted him with an embrace.

Mrs. March (Florence Eldredge), who always looks attractive, was serenely chic in a gray dinner dress. Mr. March, in a black tie, looked handsome and very well fed.

Gladys Swarthout wore one of those firecracker red coats over a black dress, and she had on her head something I can only describe as black shrubbery, which covered the back of her coiffure, formed a tiara in front, and tied under the chin.

Her husband, Frank Chapman, looked like a man who had spent the day under a sunlamp. I've never seen such a collection of rugged looking males.

And I've never seen such a tearfully responsive first night audience. By the end of the first act the tears had begun to fall, by the middle of the second there wasn't a dry ermine in the stalls, and at the final curtain there was such sniffling and handkerchief wielding as hasn't been seen since "Over the Hill to the Poor House."

Mr. Robert Sherwood was not around to hear this liquid tribute to his fine play. Or if he was, Mr. Sherwood was hiding.

After the premiere a good slice of the audience dried its eyes and repaired to the Algonquin Supper club, which was so crowded and gay I cannot imagine why they insist on closing it tonight.

Mitzi Green, the girl without the appendix, was making her first after-dark appearance since her operation, pert but a little pale. Walter Huston, with Nan Sunderland, had that "rehearsal" look, which is chiefly weariness combined with a dash of anxiety.

The names draped around the room listening to Greta Keller were right out of the blue book of the theater and the fiction world, and included Flora Robson, Eddie Dowling, Joseph Hergesheimer, Louis Calhern, Julie Haydon, Theresa Helburn, Kenneth McKenna, Mary Phillips, and J. P. McEvoy.

Reginald Denham, co-author of "Ladies in Retirement" and "Suspect," took time out from his admiration of Mary Orr to pay tribute to the new drama.

"If everyone in this country who can would go and see that play," he said, "America would get more out of the Finnish war than Russia did."

Tuesday night big blond, genial Toots Shor returned to his role og tavern keeper with the opening of his new restaurant at 51 W. 51st street, and was made happy by a turnout of practically everyone he had ever said so much as hello to. The Jack Pearls came for dinner and just stayed on and on until after midnight; sportswriters Bill Corum and Jerry Lewis swapped tales with the baseball gang.

Over at the Ruban Bleu, Paula Laurence's hilarious song satires had the crowd in stitches—particularly that part of the crowd named Cole Porter, who acted as cheerleader for the handclappers. I've never seen a man applaud so loudly.

He merely squinted at Miss Laurence during her first song, but put his glasses on for all the others, and he was so enthusiastic about her kidding of "Parlez-Moi D'Amour" that nothing would do but she had to sing it again.

Hildegarde giggled, from the table she occupied with a large party; and Arthur Kober chatted, rather sombrely, with Katherine Locks.

At the Stork club rugged individualism was rampant. The Latin band wanted to play a rhumba, and Nancy Carroll, who was tripping the light fantastic, wanted to dance a conga. So the band played a rhumba, and the tractable, less original patrons did the rhumba, and Miss C. executed one of the fanciest congas seen around these parts in months, while John O'Hara, the author, and Mrs. O'Hara, his wife, applauded from the sidelines.

For her excursion into unbridled terpsichore, Nancy (who still has the prettiest color red hair for miles around) wore an evening gown that was white at the top, white at the bottom, and a gay tropical print in the middle.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Virginia Bruce sat on the arm of a chintz-covered davenport in her library and declined with thanks Joan Bennett's nomination.

Miss Bennett, in a magazine article, had described Miss Bruce as "next to myself the laziest girl in pictures."

"I'm not really lazy," said the one-time Virginia Helen Briggs of Fargo, N. D. "I'm nearly always busy. Maybe Joan said it because I know how to conserve my energy and relax."

It is difficult to listen when the blonde and lissome erstwhile Ginny Briggs is talking. That's because she's about the prettiest blonde in town, with definitely the prettiest complexion, and a pair of gray-green eyes the color of mischief. She's a one, all right, and it's a pleasure to hear her case for the defense of Bruce's energy.

"I suppose I do look lazy," she began, "but I work hard when I'm working. I can't stand not having enough sleep, and I take a nap on the set whenever I can. I always have lunch alone in my dressing room—it's a strain having interviews over food."

Miss Bruce and her husband, the producer J. Walter Ruben, have moved recently into their new white Colonial home—five bedrooms, four baths—near the ocean. They've taken up the simple life, she said—walks in the evening, lights out by 10:30. They "go out" about one evening a week.

"And even then, no matter how late we're out," she said, "I'm awake at 8:30. I can't stand being awake in bed when there might be something going on. I hear the birds and the squirrels, and the sun is shining, and I've got to be up. And I putter around in my garden, and I read, and I work at my needlepoint, and play with Susan—I'm never idle a minute. Of course, it seems to me I never get anything done, but I'm always busy."

Susan Ann Gilbert, aged 7, plump, rosy, and be-curled, came in to say goodbye before going to a party at Bob Montgomery's house. She was just up from her nap.

"She's very good about naps," said Mother Bruce. "She seems to know when she needs rest, and she never discusses whether she shall or shall not take a nap."

We slipped away from the subject of Miss Bruce's energy, and she got to talking about Hazel Washington, her former studio maid. She was very fond of Hazel and loved especially the way "Hazel used to tuck me in when I was taking a nap," so there we were again.

"I tried to throw a tantrum once," said Miss Bruce, once more energetically defending her energies, "but I gave it up in the middle. You might say it was because it was too much trouble to go on, but the real reason I stopped myself short was that I thought of Bruce in a tantrum, and the thought was so funny I had to laugh."

Miss Bruce has resumed her career, after months of inactivity, in "Flight Angels."

Dewey Picks Up Twenty-Four Delegates In Primaries

MARYLAND AND IDAHO VOTERS AID ATTORNEY

Four Slates Complicate Voting In California; Wheeler Urges 'Plank' Meet.

(By Associated Press)

Twenty-four Republican convention delegates from Maryland and Idaho were enrolled under Thomas E. Dewey's banner today, while California Democrats were registering their third term views in a complicated primary election.

Dewey delegates led an uninstructed slate by more than seven to one in Maryland's Republican primary yesterday. At the same time the Idaho Republican convention broke tradition and voted 133 to 68 to instruct its eight delegates to support the New York district attorney.

Maryland Democrats, with no presidential aspirant running on their preferential ballot, renominated Sen. George Radcliffe, onetime business associate of President Roosevelt, by nearly a two to one margin over National Committeeman Howard Bruce.

In the California Democratic primary, four delegate slates were entered. One was pledged to President Roosevelt and one to Vice President Garner. Two others, one of which was led by "ham and eggs" pension forces, were uninstructed. One uninstructed slate was on the Republican ballot.

Besides the California voting, there were primaries today in four other states, as follows:

Alabama: Democrats were choosing 22 national convention delegates from men pledged to the favorite son candidacy of Speaker Bankhead. Bankhead was unopposed for renomination to the house, but five colleagues had opposition.

Florida: More than half the 88 candidates for 14 national convention votes announced support of a third term; Sen. Charles Andrews was opposed for Democratic renomination by five candidates, including Governor Fred P. Cone.

Indiana: Both major parties were choosing nominees for 12 house seats, along with state convention delegates. Townsend pension forces were trying to defeat Reps. Charles A. Halleck and George W. Gillie, Republicans.

South Dakota: Republican and Democratic national delegations of eight members each were uninstructed. Congressional candidates in each party had no opposition, but there were gubernatorial contests.

While selection of convention delegates continued, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) suggested in Washington that Democratic leaders take a cue from the Republicans and meet in advance of the national convention July 15 to draft "fundamental principles" for a party platform.

The Republican platform committee will gather in Philadelphia a week before that party's June 24 convention to begin work on its declaration of policy.

From another well-informed senator, it was learned that President Roosevelt already is formulating his ideas for the Democratic platform and that his followers were planning to present them to the platform committee in detail.

Republican platform talk brought a suggestion from Senator Nye (R-ND) that the party should approve a foreign policy plank "suggesting strong, specific steps for keeping out of war."

Crestline Man, 58, Electrocuted as He Works at Plant

CRESTLINE—A short circuit in a sand-cutting machine was blamed today for the electrocution death of William Fleiner, 58, an employe of the Schill Manufacturing company, found dead last night at the plant.

Dr. O. A. Kackley, Crawford county coroner, said Fleiner was operating the machine and said the machine had become short circuited in some manner, killing the workman almost instantly.

Steve Humel, night watchman, found the body when he came on duty at midnight.

Fleiner was born in Austria, Aug. 15, 1881, and in 1909 he and his wife, the former Margaret Lang, came to Crestline.

Surviving are his wife, and six children, Martin of Galion, William, David, Elizabeth, George and Evelyn, all at home.

He as a member of the Trinity Lutheran church and the Sons of Herman lodge.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The body was removed to the Garverick funeral home.

Harry Fay today holds the honor of being the first Mansfield golfer to score an ace this season and to win a place in golf's Hall of Fame. Playing in a threesome at Possum Run yesterday, Fay, using a six-iron, marked up his hole-in-one on the No. 2, par three hole. His drive landed on the edge of the green, bounded onto the green and rolled into the cup. Others in the threesome were Lee Weaver and A. Pfiider.

Miss Ruth Dunham of the Senior high school faculty, today was confronted with a housing problem, but this one is confined to animals and not persons. Over the week-end Miss Dunham purchased three snails to put in her gold fish bowl, given her recently by one of her classes, and when she went to feed the fish yesterday morning before going to school she found to her surprise that in addition to three snails there were 10 little snails crawling around on the bottom of the bowl.

The porch light at the home of Mrs. George A. Levy, 73 Highland avenue, is temporarily out of commission. But there is no work for the electrician there, for the only thing wrong with the light is "bird trouble." A pair of robbins built a nest on top of the light and there are several tiny blue eggs in it. Mrs. Levy will not permit the light to be turned on for fear of disturbing the mother bird. Last year blue jays built a nest in the top of a washline post in the Levy's back yard.

If there were no other indication that spring is really here there would be the "dog complaints" on the police log. There were four complaints on the record this morning of dogs that tore up flower beds and new lawns, and some that "chased" pedestrians. Albert Bullock, Garden Acres, was the only one, however, who actually met up with a dog with serious intentions. He reported that a dog at 535 Olivesburg road had bitten him on the leg.

ENDORSES PLAN IN CONFERENCE WITH BIG FOUR

Calls in Congressional Heads After Return to Capital From Hudson River.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house judiciary committee voted 14 to 11 today to revive the Hatch political practices bill and give it further consideration.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Back in the White House from a week-end visit to his boyhood home on the upper reaches of the Hudson river, President Roosevelt assumed personal charge today of the fight for extension of Hatch act restrictions on political activities of state employes receiving a portion of their salary checks from the federal government.

He summoned the legislative "big four"—Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn—to the executive offices to map strategy for bringing amendments to the "clean politics" bill out of a house pigeonhole and onto the floor for a vote.

At the same time the chief executive sounded out the congressional leaders on their best guesses as to the date of congressional adjournment. Mr. Roosevelt is interested in an early June adjournment so that he will be able to make his projected transcontinental swing, which may include a sea dash to Alaska.

The president said yesterday he is giving the trip no further thought until he is sure congress will clear out of the capital in time for him to launch his tour.

He will return by a northern route whether or not he takes the excursion to Alaska. On his return he may pause at Isle Royal park to cruise on the Great Lakes. The 21-day trip wil loverlap the Republican national convention, which opens in Philadelphia June 24.

Mr. Roosevelt gave his unqualified endorsement to the Hatch bill amendments in an unexpected press conference aboard his special train yesterday afternoon as he sped back to the capital hours ahead of schedule for, as he said, no particular reason except that he had a case of nerves over the European situation, feeling that a break on the war front is impending.

In the press conference, which was apparently called to put the president on record on the Hatch act amendments, Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped the measure could be brought to the floor of the house, voted upon and passed. The senate already has approved it.

The one presidential sentence was expected to supply the impetus necessary to drive the measure to passage.

FORM UNION AT GILEAD PLANT

Hydraulic Employes Organize, File Complaint With Labor Board on Shutdown.

MT. GILEAD — Organization of a union among employes of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing company here and the lodging of a complaint against the company with the Labor Relations board in Washington was announced today.

A. J. Skundor, grand lodge representative of the International Association of Machinists, an A. F. of L. affiliate, said that 100 employes of the Hydraulic company had been initiated at a meeting held at the Claypool dance hall last Friday night.

Skundor said the complaint to the labor board, charging unfair labor practices had been made following the refusal of Howard MacMillin, president of the company, to meet with a grievance committee of the local, which has applied to the international lodge for a charter.

Skundor and representatives of the new union also charged that the shutdown of the night shifts at the plant, ordered last Thursday, was a lock-out to discourage union organization, and not because of inefficiency in operation, as the management had claimed.

Officers of the union were announced as David Rathbur , president; Robert Garster, recording secretary, and Richard Hickman, financial secretary. All are from Mt. Gilead. Members of the grievance committee were listed as Hickman, Howard L. Long, Mt. Gilead and Herbert Campbell, Cardington.

BALLET-CHORAL CONCERT WINS PRAISE; BROMFIELD GIVES TALK

By JANE WILLIAMS

You don't have to go to New York City or the metropolitan centers to hear good music today, Louis Bromfield told an audience of more than 700 last night at Senior high school auditorium when he spoke before the opening of the ballet-choral concert presented by Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson.

The concert, presented with the Mansfield Singers club and the Cleveland ballet under the direction of Sergi Popeloff, was a part of Mansfield's recognition of National Music week.

Bromfield, who was music critic of "Musical America" before he began his career as a novelist, said that today good music may be had by the humblest person, and that once an individual has learned to love and appreciate good music, he has acquired something indestructable and something that can never be taken away from him.

"Because of the chaos in Europe," he said, "it can no longer be looked to as the guardian of the culture of western civilization, and that responsibility now devolves upon America."

Bromfield was introduced by Rev. David N. Roller, who also paid tribute to Mrs. Jameson for her cultural contributions to Mansfield.

There were about 50 singers in the orchestra pit of the auditorium and their choral music provided the background for the dancers.

Throughout the concert unusual lighting arrangements were used so that the stage was always obscured and the dancers in bold and colorful relief. For the "Blue Danube" ballet, the dancers wore shades of blue costumes and the stage was enveloped in a lovely blue light.

The most impressive of the dances was the ballet "Dance of the Hours" from La Gioconda," in which the story is told, first by the "Birds of Dawn," and last, by the "Guardians of the Night," the Queen of the Night and the Wandering Prince.

An effective number was the Tales From Vienna Woods," in which the choral group was at its best, and which was interpreted gracefully on the stage by Miss Lois McDonald. The lights gave the effect of sunlight filtering through the leaves of trees. "Song of India," the Chinese love story, and the Dutch and Russian numbers were attractively done by singers and dancers.

The audience was a most appreciative one, paying tribute to both the singers and the dancers, and the general feeling, expressed on all sides after the concert, was that it was the most attractive affair that Mrs. Jameson has presented to date.

Only three solo voices were heard during the concert. Miss Betty Austin and Miss Sara Catherine Wallace carried the vocal obligatos during the Gypsy ballet and Arthur Boyce was the soloist in "The Lost Chord."

Pianists were Margaret B. Hall, Louise Reynolds, both of Mansfield and Marguerite Hoffacker of Cleveland.

GETS CONTRACT

Edison Man to Enlarge Sewage Plant at Mt. Gilead.

MT. GILEAD—G. K. Kohbarger, Edison contractor, was awarded a contract last night by city council for improving the city's sewage disposal plant on his low bid of $8,675.

Two other contractors submitted bids. They were G. N. Leach of Franklin, O., who asked $16,555 for the work, and Harry Strodbeck of Mt. Vernon who asked $10,862.

The contract calls for the construction of a two-story building to house the sewage disposal equipment and the installation of apparatus to increase the capacity of the plant from 200,000 gallons a day to 500,000 gallons a day.

Funds for the improvement will come from a $12,000 bond issue voted overwhelmingly at a special election several weeks ago. Work is expected to start in about 10 days.

We slipped away from the subject of Miss Bruce's energy, and she got to talking about Hazel Washington, her former studio maid. She was very fond of Hazel and loved especially the way "Hazel used to tuck me in when I was taking a nap," so there we were again.

"I tried to throw a tantrum once," said Miss Bruce, once more energetically defending her energies, "but I gave it up in the middle. You might say it was because it was too much trouble to go on, but the real reason I stopped myself short was that I thought of Bruce in a tantrum, and the thought was so funny I had to laugh."

Miss Bruce has resumed her career, after months of inactivity, in "Flight Angels."
